Senate Wing Damaged Extensively

Seek Clues on Capitol Bomb Caller

WASHINGTON (AP) — A powerful bomb ripped up an interior portion of the Senate wing of the Capitol early today but caused no injuries. Damage was extensive.

Police, Army and FBI investigators were seeking clues to the identity of the male caller who warned the Capitol switchboard: "The Capitol building will blow up in 30 minutes."

Half an hour later, at 1:32 a.m. EST, the bomb exploded. Capitol Police Chief James Powell said one of his officers was within 200 feet of the blast but escaped injury despite windows breaking "right over his head."

Powell said the explosion caused what appeared to be a "serious crack" in the already weakened west wall.

The blast gutted a men's room directly across from the Old Senate Chamber, blasted doors off their hinges in several surrounding rooms, and blew out windows all the way out to the Senate's front door—perhaps 125 feet.

Bricks, doors, lighting and other fixtures were piled high in a corridor when newsmen were allowed a brief inspection about six hours after the blast.

The men's room—open to the public but generally only known about by people working in the area—was a grey hulk filled with tiny pieces of plumbing fixtures and grey plaster rubble. It was almost impossible to tell it had been a rest room.

A red brick wall on one side of the men's room was badly cracked and bulging out into the corridor. Plaster molding on the corridor wall was blown away and littered the floor along with glass from broken windows.

Gold lace curtains were pushed out against and sometimes through broken windows all the way down to the ornately painted committee and reception rooms on the north end of the Senate Chamber. The front door, another 50 feet away, was broken.

The Senate barber shop, across a small hallway from the men's room, was badly littered and mirrors and windows were shattered but the barber chairs and other heavy equipment were not mangled or moved.

The outside of the historic Old Senate Chamber, which was used from 1800 to 1808 and was the scene of President John Adams' inauguration, Nov. 22, 1800, was not damaged. The door was closed and newsmen did not look inside.

Capitol police said there had been six bomb threats since Christmas. Chief Powell said routine procedures were used between 1 a.m. and 1:32 a.m. when the blast occurred.

Sen. George Aiken, R-Vt., returned from viewing the damage and said he believes the warning phone call and its early-morning timing bear the "earmarks of organization."

Engineers in the office of the architect of the Capitol looked for possible structural injury to the historic and ancient west wing.

Thomas F. Clancy, supervising engineer of the Capitol, said through a spokesman that it was too early to determine the full extent of the damage.

Windows were blasted out directly above the huge wooden beams that were braced against the west front several years ago, but there were no visible cracks or any other damage in the wall itself.

There were cracks, however, in the interior section of another wall some distance from the west front close to the blast area.

The Senate Chamber itself, in a new section of the building, was not damaged.

Washington, D.C. Police, FBI and Army bomb experts from nearby Ft. McNair searched the building. Washington police used German shepherd dogs, and combed other parts of the Capitol looking for any other bombs.

The Capitol had been closed to the public at 5 p. m. EST Sunday. Officials said custodial personnel had left the building some hours before the explosion. Only members of the Capitol police force were inside at the time.

Members of the U.S. Senate expressed shock and amazement today over an explosion that caused extensive damage to the Senate wing of the Capitol building.

"Anyone who would plant a bomb like that any place, let alone the nation's Capitol, has to be a revolutionary or completely mad," Sen. Harold E. Hughes, D-Iowa, said.

"They will certainly be condemned by anyone who has an interest in this country at all," Hughes said in a telephone interview from Chicago.

Sen. Peter H. Dominick, R-Colo., had a similar opinion.

"I don't know what group it is, of course," Dominick said. "But any group that tries to destroy something with the history of this nation behind it is obviously out of their mind—and very, very dangerous."

Other comments:

Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss.: "It might represent merely the act of a few individuals, but it is quite serious from any viewpoint. And it is to be deeply regretted that the site of our representative government would have to be guarded, as would be necessary for a time, anyway."

Sen. George S. McGovern, D-S.D., an announced candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination: "I deeply regret it, of course. I can only say it's a tragic, barbaric thing for anyone to do."

Sen. George D. Aiken, R-Vt.: "It's not totally unexpected, as I think the police have been keeping close watch, but weekends are not good. I have to say I'm not surprised."

Abandon Another Laos Base, Rush in 10,000 More Troops

Combined Wire Services
SAIGON — South Vietnamese troops have abandoned another base in their bogged-down effort to cut the Ho Chi Minh supply trail in Laos, military sources said today.

The sources said the South Vietnamese infantrymen left the base, called Hotel 2, because heavy anti-aircraft fire prevented U.S. helicopters from dropping supplies or evacuating wounded. It is the fourth base the South Vietnamese have abandoned under heavy Communist fire in a week.

Hotel 2 was evacuated Sunday by two battalions of 10,000 men into Laos to reinforce the 16,000-man task force that moved into the country with American air support Feb. 8 to cut the Ho Chi Minh Trail, the Communists' vital supply line to Cambodia and South Vietnam.

According to military sources the reinforcements were necessary to meet a threat posed by an estimated seven North Vietnamese regiments and tank units operating along route 9 inside Laos. The South Vietnamese operation, which began Feb. 8 and is backed by American air power, has been stalled about 16 miles across the border for nearly two weeks.

Lt. Gen. James W. Sutherland, commander of the 9,000 U.S. troops acting as a blocking force on the Vietnamese side of the border, said the North Vietnamese appear to be marshaling all their forces for an attempt to thwart the allied effort to cut the supply network through southern Laos.

"This is it," said Sutherland. "The enemy has chosen to react with everything he's got left so it appears we'll have to fight him right here."

Very little contact was reported in the Laotian operation Sunday night and this morning.

Field reports said the remnants of a North Vietnamese regiment had withdrawn after five days of heavy fighting from around Hill 31, the South Vietnamese paratrooper base north of Highway 9 and about 12 miles inside Laos. Both sides suffered heavy losses, military sources said.

Vogt Welcomes New Aides To Crime-Fighting Team

By HUGH REYNOLDS
District Attorney Francis J. Vogt welcomed two new assistants to his Ulster County crime fighting team this morning. He then used the occasion to turn thumbs down on a bill before the legislature to set up a division of criminal justice to supervise all law enforcement agencies in the state.

The two young attorneys, appointed to fill vacancies caused by the resignation of assistant district attorneys James H. Fisher and James H. Kerr, are John T. Dall Vechia, 26, of Highland and James Melbert, 28, of Poughkeepsie.

The resignations of Fisher and Kerr, the team that won a murder conviction and death penalty on Gerald McGovern and Charles Culhane last month in County Court, were accepted "with extreme regret" by Vogt. The resignations are effective today.

The Criminal Justice Department Bill which Vogt is not alone in opposing — "the state District Attorney's association is dead set against it," he said, — was passed in the 1970 Legislature. Ulster County's representatives, Assemblyman H. Clark Bell and State Senator Jay P. Rolison Jr., voted against it. The bill will come up for another vote this year and then go to the voters for approval in November.

The bill creates a new state department to supervise all state law enforcement officials and Vogt is opposed for a variety of reasons, to wit:

"We are now responsible to the governor. If he feels we aren't doing the job he can suspend us for just cause."

"I can't think of anything we need less than some official appointed by the governor to supervise our activities."

"It just goes against the grain to think of a district attorney, who is an elected official, being supervised by an appointed official."

"They'll spend millions and millions of dollars to establish this department to serve no useful purpose whatsoever. If they want to spend money, let them spend it down here on more judges and more courtroom space and more staff for law enforcement officials where the people can get full value for their money."

Vogt then gave a report of his department's case load. "As an indication of what a big case (the Culhane-McGovern murder case) does to our calendar," he said, "we only disposed of two cases (by plea) in January."

"The first two weeks in February were taken up by the penalty trial, but we had another judge (Family Court Judge Robert Williams of Sullivan County, acting Ulster County judge) and half a month and we disposed of 15 indictments, all felonies, except for six youthful offenders."

Criminal court will reconvene on March 15, Vogt said, and his department has a calendar of 19 cases ready to go starting with the murder indictment of Rodney Arnold who is accused of killing Elizabeth Blaustein in Ellenville on May 30 of last year.

Vogt in welcoming Dall Vechia and Melbert to his staff, noted their "excellent academic records." Both are graduates of Albany Law School. Dall Vechia, a graduate of Highland Central High School and Colgate University, is an associate with the Kingston law firm of Ryan, Bradley and Kerr.

Melbert, a graduate of Kingston High School and Georgetown University, is a partner in the firm of Tully and Lambert of New Paltz.

Dall Vechia will be assigned to justice courts in Plattekill, Highland, Marlboro, Gardiner, New Paltz and Shawangunk.

Melbert will be assigned to justice courts in Hurley, Shandaken, Rosendale, Kingston (town), Lloyd and Esopus.

Melbert will be paid $6,000 a year as an assistant district attorney while Dall Vechia will be paid $6,500 per year. He holds a Juris Doctor Degree of law,

Many Families Quit Homes As Walkkill Spills Over

By JEAN F. DOLAN
NEW PALTZ
Rapidly melting snows sent the Walkkill River over its banks Sunday, closing roads and causing evacuation of families.

A one-mile section of Route 299 West of New Paltz and four miles of Springtown Road along the Walkkill River flats remained closed today. According to the Walkkill Valley Flood Forecasting Committee the river will crest at that point at 9 a. m. Tuesday.

Two families were evacuated from their homes on Forest Glen Road, Town of Gardiner, Sunday. Waters rose so rapidly that one family was unable to get its car out of the rushing torrent. They remained in temporary shelter today. Fourteen summer homes in that area also were flooded.

Ice jams complicated the high water situation according to the flood forecasting committee. Flood margin was judged to be at minus one inch and Leroy Fein of the committee noted that more rain could cause major flooding. No rain is in the weather forecast, however, and temperatures are expected to turn cooler over the next few days.

Roads were closed in Dutchess County also. Overlook Road in the Town of LaGrange was under two feet of water and was closed to traffic. There was some flooding in the city of Poughkeepsie where Morgan Lake overflowed into storm drains.

Temperatures soared into the 50's Sunday following the snow-melting drizzle and fog of Saturday. The combination ate into accumulated snow banks sending rivers of surface water flowing down streets and in some cases into cellars.

In the Barclay Heights area of Saugerties, homeowners worked to open sewers as surface water caused sudden flooding. William Whittle, vice-president of the Barclay Heights Homeowners Civic Association said that attempts to reach the superintendent of highways were unsuccessful and the residents had to do the clearing of drains.

He said that Town Supervisor A. Michael Schovel and other town officials who were alerted to the situation caused by the sudden warm weather expressed concern that the sewers had not been opened. Whittle said the association chose to work through public officials. The main question he said was "how much work and when the service department will do it function."

Kingston fared rather well with only back up of surface water reported.

High winds in the western part of the state downed power lines in a number of areas. Although it was a few hours premature for the traditional lamb or lion entry of March, the warm and windy weather might indicate that both the gentle and strong are in the forecast for the coming month of transition into spring.

Freeman to Sponsor Dale Carnegie Course

KINGSTON
Saturday. The organization of this class will be under the direction of Stan Brown, area manager, who presents the Dale Carnegie Courses in the Mid-Hudson area.

"The Dale Carnegie Course for more than half a century, has been helping men and women to live happier, richer and more successful lives."

Richard L. Treat, publisher of The Daily Freeman announced today that this newspaper will again act as sponsor of the world-famous Dale Carnegie Course soon to begin in Kingston.

"We are bringing the Dale Carnegie Course to our community because we feel it is in the interest of public service," Treat said.

Last year's overwhelming response and the enthusiastic attitude of more than 40 graduates resulting from the Kingston Class 13, points out the need to continue such programs in Kingston.

During the forming of the Kingston Class here, The Daily Freeman will publish a series of feature articles by Mike Rothenberger, staff representative of Dale Carnegie and Associates, Inc. of New York.

The series is entitled, "I Will Prepare Myself" it will appear Monday, Wednesday and Bernadette Devlin spent most of her 1½ hours Saturday night at Vassar College espousing true socialism as the only way to end the economic inequities of Ireland and the rest of the world.

The self-proclaimed "Revolutionary socialist" who, at 22, is a member of British Parliament from riot-torn Northern Ireland, said that newspaper accounts of the strife there as religiously inspired were wrong, and cited you waited." Being somewhat States one man shouted that the economic problems of the working class to the real issue.

Miss Devlin arrived at Vassar dium to deliver her sometimes Irish and sometimes tired oratory.

There was some scattered heckling from the audience which Miss Devlin, with the longer microphone, managed to handle without much difficulty.

Upon taking the podium to the thunderous applause of about 1,300 persons her first words were, "I don't know why either Ireland or the United States one man shouted that she could speak freely in America. She answered, "I'm an Irish radical and I'll be gone by St. Patrick's Day; but there are those like Angela Davis who won't."

She said, "We cannot any longer talk in terms of a glorious isolated past," and proceeded to make her case for a society of true socialism.

Among other observations and assertions offered by the diminutive speaker was, "James Connolly (Irish folk hero) was a self-confessed Marxist. People say it as if it were a crime."

"About the Catholic religion: 'Do you think we are fighting to support the organized Church that has never stood up for us in the past?'"

About the Vietnam conflict: "The government hires American working class to kill Vietnamese working class so that General Motors can get controls 95 per cent of the wealth both in Britain and the U.S."

On the rioting in Belfast: "The people in the ghettos are fighting because it's a more dignified way to die than starvation."

Miss Devlin claimed that the Conservative Party in Ireland is creating unemployment "as President Nixon is creating unemployment." And she claimed that five per cent of the population "owns and

When a student asked why she was touring college campuses when her message was primarily for the working class she answered, "You sell your brains as sure as a laborer sells his hands, and both are workers."

"We live in the violence of poverty," she continued, "and we can end it without violence, but do you think that five percent will let us?" And, "You ask me where is a socialist country that works: I ask you where is a capitalist country that works?"

After telling a questioner that he was a dog that did not even know his own master, the man answered that "Jesus Christ is my master."

"If Jesus Christ were alive today he'd go to the electric chair as an anarchist," she responded.

Vassar was one stop on a national college campus tour which Bernadette Devlin has undertaken to raise money for a research center in Belfast to study methods to resolve what she terms the social and economic inequities.

Youth Center Project

Ellenville Drive Gaining Momentum

By WADE BURKHART

KINGSTON
The drive to build a youth center in Ellenville gathered momentum with a meeting in the office of WGHQ President Harry Thayer between a delegation of the Ellenville United Brotherhood Youth Center, headed by Entertainer Peg Leg Bates, and Congressman Hamilton Fish Jr. (R-28th).

The delegation made two specific requests of Fish, and he readily agreed to both. He was asked to unsnarl some red tape surrounding correspondence the group has had with the Department of Housing and Urban Development. They had first addressed correspondence to the Department of Interior, and that department, replying in a letter dated Nov. 25, said the Neighborhood Facilities Program of HUD would be more appropriate and they were forwarding the correspondence to that agency. Since that time the group has heard nothing.

Fish agreed to contact the agency to try to secure a reason for the rejection by that agency of the center's use of an Urban Renewal building on

Old Ti Paper Mill Closing

MONTPELIER, Vt. (UPI)—International Paper Co. of New York says it is closing down the old paper mill at Ticonderoga, N.Y., that Vermont contends is responsible for pollution in southern Lake Champlain.

Gov. Deane C. Davis said Saturday he was informed by Ralph Kittle, vice president of the paper company, that the company plans to move its paper-making operations to its modern, $75 million plant north of Ticonderoga as of Apr. 24. The company moved pulping, bleaching and chemical recovery systems to the new plant in December.

The company's announcement would shut down the old facility several months prior to a revised deadline which directed an end to waste discharges from the old mill by July 1st. Originally, the date was set for July 1, 1970, but work stoppages and strikes at the new plant slowed construction. The new mill is designed to be pollution free.

Vermont has charged that sludge deposited by years of the firm's paper operations at Ticonderoga has lowered lake water quality standards on Vermont's side of the lake.

Vermont has asked the U.S. Supreme Court to take jurisdiction in its case and order New York and the company to remove 300 acres of sludge that has accumulated from the old mill's waste discharges.

Davis also announced plans to meet with Paul Goreman, International Paper's new president, on Thursday. Goreman, former Penn Central Railroad president, recently succeeded Edward Hinman in the company's top job.

Showdown Vote Promised on Blaine Amendment Repeal

(Combined Wire Services)

ALBANY, N. Y. — A showdown vote was promised in the Assembly today on the volatile question of repealing the New York Constitution's "Blaine Amendment" ban on state financial aid to parochial schools.

The measure's sponsor, Assemblyman John T. Buckley, R-Utica, said he was tired of legislative stalling on the issue and would move for a vote when the Assembly convened this afternoon.

"I'm just sick of having it hang around," Buckley declared.

A spokesman for Assembly

Speaker Perry B. Duryea acknowledged that Duryea had a long-standing agreement with Buckley that the question would be debated whenever Buckley chose to do so. Thus the stage was set for action.

The fate of the measure was in doubt, even though both the Assembly and Senate approved it by wide margins last year — because there has been considerable change in thinking in high places.

The Roman Catholic Church had been the strongest advocate of Blaine repeal, but this year the state's Catholic bishops said they would prefer to forget about Blaine and concentrate on more immediate ways of helping their financially distressed school systems.

To repeal Blaine, approval is required by the 1971 legislature — in addition to the action taken last year. Then the question must be submitted to the voters in the 1971 general election. If no other action were taken, the earliest that financial aid would be forthcoming would be 1972.

The bishops now say they fear that the controversy over Blaine will preempt efforts to supply money within the scope of the Constitution as it now stands. This view has been adopted also by the measure's Senate sponsor, Majority Leader Earl W. Brydges.

Brydges has let it be known that he now wants the Blaine issue dropped. The bill is lodged in committee in his house, and there is doubt that it would be brought to a vote in the Senate even if the Assembly does pass it again.

Meanwhile, Brydges' office is working on an alternative plan. The tentative approach is to create a publicly paid "teachers corps" to go into parochial and other private schools and instruct children in such basic subjects as science and mathematics.

Gov. Rockefeller has called for repeal of the Blaine ban but also has said that he is working on alternative ways of giving immediate help to the parochial schools.

The prohibition was written into the State Constitution in 1894, a decade after the "romanticism and rebellion" controversy stirred by the presidential candidacy of Maine's U.S. Sen. James B. Blaine.

Meanwhile, legislation designed to implement Governor Rockefeller's controversial "no fault" auto insurance program went to the legislature today.

Announcement of the filing was made by the governor in a special message made public Saturday night. He said the system could cut current car insurance premiums by up to 56 percent.

Similar legislation introduced last year ran into heavy opposition from lawyers and most insurance companies, and was never reported out of committee for a vote.

"The proposal I again submit to you will cure the grave defects of the present system," Rockefeller told lawmakers. "It is no halfway measure of palliative to still, temporarily, the voices of auto insurance reform."

As the legislature began considering the plan, the State Insurance Department announced approval of an average increase of 19.3 percent in car insurance rates for drivers in the "assigned risk" category.

The governor explained the new system will:

—Cut the cost of insurance through elimination of large amounts paid for administration, lawyers fees and court costs.

—Compensate all automobile accident victims for all their net economic losses, including medical and rehabilitative expenses, lost income and other related expenses.

—Enable quick handling of claims.

—Encourage development of safer cars, since drivers of unsafe cars would pay higher insurance costs.

—Free civil courts of thousands of automobile negligence cases.

—Continue penalizing drunken, drugged and other antisocial drivers by continuing to make them criminally liable for accidents they cause.

"In an age where the plea is for relevance in our daily lives, few institutions are less relevant to current realities than the present system for compensating automobile accident victims," the governor said.

"The system was not intended to serve a nation in which millions of vehicles are on the road at speeds exceeding 60 miles an hour, in which a person is injured in a vehicular accident every seven seconds and in which there are over 55,000 automobile deaths annually," the governor said.

Still Room to Talk: Israel

By United Press International

Egypt said Sunday Israel's refusal to withdraw from all Arab territory has closed the door to peace, but Israel insisted there still is room for negotiation.

The two largest Israeli newspapers reported the United States and the United Nations were pressuring Israel to make withdrawal concessions before the Middle East cease-fire expires March 7.

An Egyptian government spokesman said in Cairo Sunday that the Israeli state-ready to discuss or bargain over the liberation of lands, the Ambassador Mohamed Hassan spokesman said.

British Soldier Fire Death In Belfast Patrol Car

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI)—A British soldier burned to death in Londonderry early today when terrorists firebombed his patrol car. Two other soldiers in the auto escaped with minor injuries.

Troops in Belfast traded shots with a sniper in the Catholic Lower Falls Road area early today. Later, a 16-year-old youth was taken to a hospital with gunshot wounds in the stomach, but an army spokesman said it was not known if he was the sniper.

The firebombing took place in Londonderry's Roman Catholic bogside area. About 15 to 20 youths confronted the three-man patrol in their land rover and threw some 10 firebombs at the auto, three or four of which exploded against the car and set it on fire.

The auto ran into a wall, but the driver managed to get out and arrest one of the youths. Residents in the area pulled the injured soldier from the burning auto and cared for him until help arrived, but he died. They also cared for the third soldier in the patrol, who was suffering from shock.

The soldier, who was not identified pending notification of relatives, was the third British soldier killed in Northern Ireland in less than a month. Two other soldiers died as a result of a Feb. 5 shooting incident in Belfast.

The Belfast shooting incident climaxed a day-long series of clashes between troops and Roman Catholic youths, spurred on by women in combat jackets and black berets. The youths threw bombs, bricks and bottles at the troops, who retaliated with volleys of rubber bullets.

Four Highway Deaths in Greene and Orange Counties

By WALTER S. CLARK

A Greene County couple was numbered among more than 19 persons killed over the weekend on the highways in New York State. Orange County recorded two traffic fatalities since Friday, but luckily Ulster and other neighboring areas reported no highway deaths.

The double-fatality in Greene County occurred at 3:25 a. m. Sunday on Route 9W near the intersection of Route 23 about three-quarters of a mile south of this village.

Leeds State Police said the crash involved in the spectacular crash were operated by Henry H. Gardiner, 55, of RD 2, Box 741, Catskill, and 24-year-old Allen J. Giordano of Box 25, Cementon.

Killed in the collision were Gardiner and his 55-year-old wife, Charlotte. Both victims were employed at the State Vocational Institution at Coxsackie.

Greene County Coroner Henry Mills, who investigated the fatality with BCI Investigator J. P. Mills, Sergeant Henry S. Rhodes, and Troopers R. C. Rose and N. J. Pazin, withheld a verdict pending further investigation by Leeds State Police.

Giordano was taken to the Albany Medical Center Hospital suffering multiple injuries. His condition was listed as critical yesterday but authorities were informed this morning that the survivor of the crash had shown some signs of improvement.

State Police reports noted that Gardiner was traveling north on Route 9W and the other vehicle was heading in the opposite direction when the cars crashed head-on in the north-bound lane.

The Gardiners were pronounced dead by Coroner Mills on arrival at the Greene County Memorial Hospital.

Gardiner was employed at the Coxsackie institution as a meat cutter, and his wife was a senior account clerk there.

Other weekend fatalities on the highways were reported by Orange County authorities.

Police said Edward Jurbala, 36, of Goshen, was injured fatally early Sunday when his car went out of control and crashed into a tree off State School Road in Warwick.

The victim of the other death was identified as 33-year-old Larry Slonaker, of Middletown, who was killed Friday when his motorcycle veered out of control and collided with a car at an intersection not far from his home.

Meanwhile, Albany police investigated a fatal accident that involved a child scooter. Authorities said John Hotelling, 6, of 415 South Pearl Street, that city, pushed his scooter out onto the highway and it was in collision with a car driven by 19-year-old his way home from work. The car in which Rance and three other officers were riding became disabled, and as Rance came disabled, and as Rance tried to hail a passing cab he was struck and a second car dragged him to his death.

Newburgh and Middletown Men Facing Charges of Homicide

Two Orange County men were in custody today facing homicide charges that stemmed from separate shooting incidents over the weekend. Both defendants were held without bail.

Eli Bell, 21, of 81 Chambers Street, this city, was taken into custody Saturday night and charged with murder in connection with the fatal shooting of 26-year-old Lester Dillard of 125 West Parmenter Street.

Bell allegedly shot and fatally wounded Dillard with a small caliber pistol as the two men reportedly engaged in an argument in the apartment of Ruby Mae Briggins of 52 DuBois Street early Saturday night.

Dillard, who police said was the father of two children, was pronounced dead on arrival at St. Luke's Hospital. He had been shot at least twice in the chest.

Police Chief Humbert M. Capelli, who directed the investigation of the shooting, said the pistol believed to have been used in the killing was found by police in the woman's apartment.

Several persons who witnessed the shooting were taken to police headquarters for questioning.

A woman neighbor first notified police at headquarters that someone had been shot.

Meanwhile, Middletown authorities continued investigation of the fatal shooting of a 28-year-old man in his home at 56 Beacon Street, in that Orange County city.

Police said Douglas Blair, 41, of the same address, was later taken into custody and charged with murder.

Authorities had been summoned to the Blair apartment to investigate an "accidental" rifle shooting, officers said. Subsequent investigation resulted in the murder charge. A 30-30 caliber rifle reportedly was used in the shooting.

The older man was held without bail pending a preliminary examination in Middletown City Court.

Traffic Gains on River Span

Vehicle traffic on the Kingston-Rhinecliff Bridge increased by slightly more than six per cent during the fourth quarter period of 1970, it was announced recently by the New York State Bridge Authority.

A total of 560,038 vehicles passed over the local bridge during the three month period, compared to 528,072 in 1969. Total passage on the bridge for 1970 totaled 2,295,168, a jump of 6.28 per cent over the 1969 totals.

Only the Rip Van Winkle Bridge, however, recorded a lower volume of traffic during the past year than the local Bridge. Heaviest volume was reported on the Newburgh-Beacon Bridge with that structure also recording the greatest percentage increase over the 1969 totals.

Traffic on the Rip Van Winkle Bridge for 1970 totaled 1,905,662, up 12.09 per cent from 1969: Kingston-Rhinecliff Bridge, 2,295,168, up 6.28 per cent; Mid-Hudson Bridge, 5,390,554, up 4.08 per cent; Newburgh-Beacon Bridge, 5,986,523, up 15.30 per cent and the Bear Mountain Bridge, 2,487,326, up 8.61 per cent. Total volume on the five Hudson River bridges increased by 9.35 per cent in 1970 over the 1969 figures.

Toll revenues for the five bridges during 1970 totaled $4,907,289. Operating expenses were $2,099,668.

Revenue bonds (1963 series) outstanding total $29,695,000, as of Dec. 31, 1970.

RVHS Student To D.C.

STONE RIDGE

John Ryder of Stone Ridge, the Rondout Valley High School student who won the post of congressman in a mock election held in connection with the Ulster County Youth-In-Government program, will fly to Washington, D. C. next Monday as the two-day guest of Congressman Hamilton Fish Jr.

Young Ryder will leave at 7 a. m. Monday from Kingston with the congressman and the two will fly together to the capital where the student congressional winner will get a first hand look at government in action.

John and other participating students of Rondout Valley School were advised by Andrew Lutz, chairman of the school's social studies department.

Students of many schools throughout the county participated in the Youth-In-Government program which was sponsored recently by the Ulster County Legislature under the direction of Legislator S. Robert Kelder (R-Dist. 2) and his Youth and Recreation Committee.

Biological Symposium, Auburn Players on UCCC Calendar

A Student Theatre Guild play, a biological symposium and a course on horse care were among activities announced at Ulster County Community College at Stone Ridge.

The Student Theatre Guild of Auburn Community College will present the play, "Eh", tonight under sponsorship of the Student Government Organization at the J. Watson Bailey School, Kingston at 8:30 p.m. Admission will be free for students and members of the community.

Daniel C. Labeille, the Theatre Arts chairman at Auburn, said he chose this particular play for its comedy potential and adaptability to college acting.

Rick Churchill, an instructor in the Theatre Arts Department at Auburn, was in charge of set design and technical effects for this play.

The contemporary comedy has a cast of six. William Tracy plays the lead and will portray the new worker, Valentine Brose. Peter Abbott will play the worker's manager, Price. The Pakistani worker, Aly, will be portrayed by Bruce Opydyke. Miss Stephanie Dalgard will play the Rev. Mort, and Miss Melissa M. Leeds will play Betty, Val's wife.

All members of the biological community in the Northeast U.S. are being invited to present papers at the Second Annual Biological Symposium scheduled for April 30 and May 1 in Ulster County, according to Professor Richard B. Glazer, chairman of the Division of Biological and Health Sciences at Ulster County Community College.

Professor Glazer said the papers should represent some experience in research, program and curricular materials and innovations in science education. Authors should submit an original abstract, with two copies, no more than 200 words.

The deadline for receiving abstracts is April 1. Each participant at the Symposium will be allotted a presentation time of 15 minutes plus a five minute question period.

There also will be a session for student papers, and high school, undergraduate and graduate students are invited to submit abstracts.

The Biologically Symposium is being sponsored by UCCC, the Kingston City Schools Science Department and the National Task Force of Two-Year College Biologists of the American Institute of Biological Sciences, of which Professor Glazer is a member.

The Symposium will include a banquet the night of Friday, April 30, at the Williams Lake Hotel, near the UCCC campus. The featured speaker will be

Dr. Edward J. Koermondy, director of the Commission on Undergraduate Education in the Biological Sciences and director of the Office of Biological Education of the American Institute of Biological Sciences. His topic will be: "The Biologists and the Environment."

Papers will be presented at the Symposium session on Saturday, May 1.

The college will offer a credit-free course on Basic Horse Care on six Saturday mornings starting March 20, Ronald A. Koster, director of continuing education, announced today.

The course will be taught by Mrs. Pat Jacobsen, who has been riding and caring for horses since childhood. A teacher will cover housing and pasture, the horse, feeding, grooming, and special attention to the care of a horse's feet and shoeing.

The course will meet from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. on Saturdays. The first three classes, on March 20, 27, and April 3, will be in Room 222 in the Jacob Hasbrouck Building on the College's Stone Ridge campus, while the second three, on April 24 and May 1 and 8 will be at the Jacobsen Stables.

Registration forms and further information about this and other credit-free courses being offered by the College can be obtained by calling the Center of Continuing Education at UCCC.

Easter Seals

Many readers are no doubt familiar with the story of the civic-spirited individual who, when asked to serve on a committee or perform some charitable act, always put the request in perspective by saying, "if not me—then who?"

Perhaps it is a question many people of this community will be asking themselves as they consider the urgency of this year's Easter Seal Appeal to raise funds for rehabilitation services provided by the Easter Seal Societies to more than 250,000 crippled children and adults nationally each year. Last year the New York State Society provided aid to nearly 22,000 persons, most of them children, through its Easter Seal supported rehabilitation services.

To help readers make a knowledgeable response to the question, we feel they should know that the network of Easter Seal societies in the 50 states, the District of Columbia, and Puerto Rico, operates largely with funds contributed by a generous and compassionate public interested in sharing the cost of helping the handicapped to a fuller and happier life.

It takes qualified professional personnel to help the crippled child, the stroke victim, the hard of hearing, the youth with a speech defect, and thousands of others with improvable disabilities. It also takes rehabilitation centers, modern equipment, hospitals and day and resident camps.

The need is great and the cause worthy. By giving to Easter Seals, you help make possible more than you think.

Interest Rate Bottom

The consensus among economists is that the drop in interest rates has about reached bottom, though there are those who believe home mortgages will still fall to 6.5 per cent if not to the long-time standard of 6 per cent, paced by the commercial rate. In any case, high interest rates are gradually giving way, and borrowers feel easier.

A drop in interest rates often signals a decline in the rate of inflation, and that will please most creditors. Once inflation is under control, one of the most persuasive arguments both for higher wages and higher prices will melt away, and unemployment will be on the way out.

Bond buyers at higher ranges are the most fortunate in the recent market. Since last spring, government long-term bonds have gained 21 per cent in value, seasoned discount corporate bonds are up 22 per cent, and long-term prime municipal bonds 33 per cent.

Says Dr. Henry Kaufman, economist with Salomon Brothers, a leading New York brokerage house, "I feel that most of the rally in bonds and the decline in interest rates is behind us, that the low interest rates will be reached in the first quarter of this year, that the bond market will move into a trading range for a while, and that rates will be moderately higher by year end."

The emphasis in financial circles has been on the surging stock market. It is important to know that the bond market and interest rates also are in line with the booming financial advance.

SNOW BLINDNESS—With longer, heavier winters in most of the country, drivers, skiers, even pedestrians, need to protect their vision from snow glare. According to eye experts, exposure to bright sunlight reduces visual purple in the eyes; also permits ultra-violet and infra-red ray injuries to them. Visual purple is necessary for good vision in dim light. Wear neutral tinted lens in any strong sunlight. Or don't drive for several hours later.

The Meeting Comes to Order Again

David Lawrence Says American Foreign Policy Is Directed Toward Peace

WASHINGTON — A 65,000-word report by President Nixon to Congress, entitled "United States foreign policy for the 1970's," was released last Thursday, and the press had copies for study a couple of days earlier. The question naturally arose: "Why was such a document, which was really a report on 'the state of the world,' put together at such unprecedented length? Certainly no newspaper would have space to print it in full."

The only logical explanation is that the United States government wanted to put on paper for other governments a most comprehensive explanation of its foreign policy, for the benefit of heads of state, foreign secretaries, ambassadors and ministers throughout the world, including those of countries which have been antagonistic to America.

The report is written in a friendly tone, and the purpose of the United States is expressed without threat or ill will toward any nation. The whole concept is to explain in a conscientious manner what the United States thinks is the best means to attain peace in the world. In many ways, the document is an extraordinary review of what has been done in world affairs and what purposes are being and will be pursued.

Policies of the past are, of course, defended. The intention of the United States to protect weaker states is made clear. But, on the other hand, the reasoning on the new theme — the "Nixon Doctrine" — is carefully presented. This means that all countries, including our allies, must do more to help themselves and that the United States cannot be expected to bear the primary burden of arming either Europe or Asia, because it simply isn't a fair distribution of responsibility.

The exposition of American foreign policy should certainly meet with widespread approval in the United States, as the program set forth for the future is directed toward peace rather than defense against war.

The gist of the report was, indeed, summarized by President Nixon in his nationwide radio address the same day. This lasted less than an hour, and gave the American people a kind of digest of the document sent to Congress. But the emphasis in the radio talk was on the Vietnam problem and the importance of starting peace negotiations.

What is interesting is that, in both the report and the President's speech, relations with Russia are apparently considered to be on a satisfactory basis and susceptible of constructive results in some of the conferences that are scheduled to be held in the next year.

It is significant that the President put special stress on the importance of Communist China and its relationship to other countries, particularly with the rest of Asia. He indicated a desire to develop contacts with Peking and a willingness not only to continue but to expand efforts in that direction. There is no intention to abandon ties with the government of Nationalist China on Formosa. But it is recognized that the Peking regime can play an influential role in international affairs and that the time has come for bettering relations between Red China and the United States. In his radio message, the President declared:

"We will search for constructive discussions with Communist China while maintaining our defense commitment to Taiwan. When the government of the people's Republic of China is ready to engage in talks, it will find us receptive to agreements that further the legitimate national interests of China and its neighbors."

The President sees Asia as a developing force in the economic world and believes that United States can cooperate with the countries on that continent to assure stability. He finds encouragement in the fact that, while there is a risk of war in the Middle East, the nations there are turning to peace talks and seeking a permanent settlement of the controversial issues. He is optimistic about the situation in Western Europe as well.

On the whole, the President's message shows he is hopeful that the policies of the United States will aid the progress of the various countries. He is relying on economic evolution as the greatest influence of the immediate future of the world.

WIN OR LOSE, THERE'S NO WAY TO PLAY THE GAME

Hialeah Park race track is a nice place to visit, but I wouldn't want to die there. I have, of course. Several times. But not this day. A warm summer breeze washed the stands and peach-colored flamingoes lifted their long necks from the infield lake. The sky was pale robin's egg blue with a thin skin of fleece. My wife was smiling at her pocketbook, which is always a good sign. She has a system. She consults all the tip sheets, adds up points, then bets $2 on whatever her Ouija board tells her. When her horse comes into the stretch run, she emits a most unladylike scream and her features freeze in sheer horror as alien horses pass her baby.

My system is to consult the racing sheet, work out the speed figures for each horse in his last three races, select the best one, look at the toteboard, find out he's 4-to-5, and then bet any 15 to 1 shot. Win or lose, I know when we get home she'll say, "It's too late to cook," and that means hamburgers.

This time the sleek Thoroughbreds ran as though I had fixed the races — five out of seven. In a burst of hysteria, I cut Kelly in on half a perfecta. That was our first time at the track this season, and truly, we went there only to say hello to the flamingoes and Gene Mori, who owns the track, and the Mitchell Wolfsons, who own everything else. If I can't get into the big money, I like to shake hands with it.

But my winnings were as nothing compared to the feat of Wally Lehman and Gene Kroll. These are the middle-aged "Katzenjammer Kids" of racing. They are wily, suspicious and crafty. One time, when all of us were in New Delhi, India, Kroll and Lehman decided to go to a Hindu race track.

Now I have seen a few Hindus in my time. I thought that, from looking at their condition, if they had any horses, they'd eat them. They won't eat cows, so I figured they'd eat the nags and race the cows.

They have skinny horses, and Kroll decided to watch a race before betting. When Gene thinks he's being swindled, he has a smile halfway between that of an altar boy and a crocodile. Lehman has a hoof fetish. He goes backstage to the paddock and studies horses' ankles. If they aren't furry, he figures they're not running, and this could cut their speed.

So Kroll remained up in the stands and watched a race. The horses took off like a herd of consumptive goats, ran the wrong way, hit the backstretch and ran right out of the race track, disappearing in a patch of trees. Two minutes later, a judge hoisted some numbers up on a pole. These were win, place and show — according to him.

Wally examined all the ankles in the next race, and as there were 9 horses, this came to, in round figures, 36 or so ankles. From below, he signalled Gene: One finger, three fingers, five fingers. Kroll didn't know that Lehman was telling him that the one horse was best, the three second best, and the five — maybe.

Everybody in the betting line wore swami headgear. The whole place, except for Kroll and Lehman, looked like an Excedrin headache. Gene said: "One three five." The mutuels clerk, you should excuse the expression, said:

"One three five," and punched a ticket.

Wally came back up in the stands and said: "Did you bet the one?" "One?" roared Gene. "I bet one three five." Somebody fired a pistol and the anemic nags took off from the left side of the road, ran into the backstretch, and disappeared in a cloud of dust. The "Katzenjammer Kids" waited. Then the numbers went up on a pole: "One, three, five." "We won," said Kroll quietly, "whatever that means."

They took the ticket to the window. The clerk looked, and swooned. He called the manager. He looked, and bowed like an effendi. "I'm sorry," he said, "we don't keep that much money on the premises. However, please be seated. I'll send a messenger to the bank." They didn't know what they had bet on, but it turned out to be the best thing since vitamins.

The messenger came back with a satchel full of red bills. Lehman and Kroll had no satchel. They stuffed the bills in their pockets, in their shirts, shorts, and in the lining of their hats. They hunted for an unsuspecting taxi, because they didn't want to be rolled on the way back to the Ashoka Hotel.

They beamed. They smiled. They bowed. They laughed. They whacked each other on the back. They were rich. Or were they? The room clerk told them that they could not leave India with any more money than they declared on arrival. They stopped beaming, smiling, laughing.

Two tired men spent three days trying to peddle their Hindu money at 30 per cent of list price, with no takers. Lucky they weren't arrested. It was a better day at the track than I ever had. And a worse one, too...

Jack Anderson Says U.S. Would Use Nuclear Weapons To Prevent Vietnam Dunkirk

WASHINGTON — Despite President Nixon's disavowals, nuclear weapons will be used in Vietnam, in an extreme emergency, to prevent the destruction of the dwindling U.S. forces.

Contingency plans call for a nuclear bombardment to protect the withdrawal if the last American troops are pushed into a corner, Dunkirk like, by a North Vietnamese offensive.

Competent sources stressed that nuclear weapons would be used only as a last resort after the President concluded there was no other way to save our boys. The same sources thought it unlikely that such a drastic situation would develop.

The Red Chinese, apparently fearing the U. S. might become desperate enough to use nuclear weapons, warned shrilly on February 5 of dire consequences in the event of a U.S. nuclear attack upon the North Vietnamese.

President Nixon responded with a counter warning that the U.S. would use everything short of nuclear weapons to stop a massive North Vietnamese offensive. But in private, he has made clear he would use nuclear weapons, too, if it should become necessary to save our soldiers from annihilation.

The President is determined to complete an honorable withdrawal from Vietnam. He believes fiercely that a great power not only has the right to make a dignified exit, but that a humiliating retreat would ruin him politically.

The main reason for the move into Laos is to disrupt the enemy buildup and head off an enemy offensive in 1972, when U.S. forces may be down as low as 50,000 support troops.

At a private White House breakfast, the President told Republican congressional leaders last week that the withdrawal is proceeding on schedule. It may be possible to speed up the schedule, he indicated, if the Laos operation succeeds in spoiling the enemy's offensive capability.

Henry Kissinger, the President's national security adviser, told the GOP leaders that the South Vietnamese have cut three of the four largest enemy arteries and half of the secondary supply routes in Laos.

The primary objective of the operation, he said, is to sever the North Vietnamese supply line to Cambodia and South Vietnam. Capturing supplies, he added, is only a secondary objective.

The President broke into report that the South Vietnamese are now providing three-fourths of their own air support over Laos. They are running into increased enemy opposition. But, as we have previously reported, the North Vietnamese are expected to avoid major confrontations and to attack weak, vulnerable points in guerrilla style.

Footnote: General Creighton Abrams, the American commander, has also warned that the Viet Cong may attempt some spectacular attacks in South Vietnam to divert attention from Laos and to give an impression of strength. These would have more psychological than military goals, he suggested.

Nixon's Economics

Not until the last minute did President Nixon finally decide against a wage-price freeze in the construction industry.

At 10 a.m. last Tuesday, he told Republican congressional leaders he hadn't made up his mind.

He complained that "the $76 billion for defense in the new budget won't buy any more than the $74 billion in the present budget because of increasing costs." Government action was necessary, he said, to stop soaring inflation.

The GOP leaders came away from the White House believing he would improve a wage-price freeze. Several White House aides had the same impression until the moment he made his announcement.

But at 2 p.m., the President announced he would suspend the provisions of the Davis-Bacon Act, which requires federal construction contractors to pay prevailing wage rates.

This will permit the federal government to push down costs in spending the $14 billion that is earmarked in the new budget for new construction.

Insiders say the President chose this more moderate measure the last minute because, at heart, he believes in basic Republican economics. He favors basing government programs, such as national health insurance, upon private industry and returning more federal control to the states and cities.

Intimates acknowledge, however, that Nixon is no expert on economics. He is heavily influenced by his economic advisors who persuaded him a year ago to strive for a balanced budget. He overruled them when he concluded that unemployment was a more serious problem than inflation.

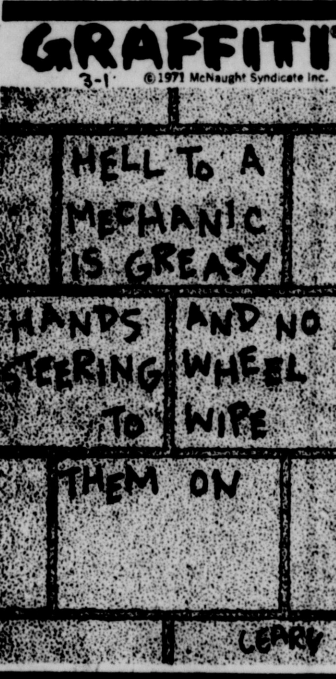

But he would still like to hold down inflation, in the Republican way, without too much federal control.

Footnote: Despite World War II experience in the Office of Price Administration, say intimates, Nixon has almost an obsession against wage-price controls.

Calley's Psychiatrist
Dr. David Crane, the Indiana psychiatrist who testified for Lt. William Calley at the My Lai Trials, happens to be a brother to Rep. Phil Crane, R-Ind.

Congressman Crane made the front pages when he disputed findings of other Congressmen that South Vietnamese prisons were infamous dungeons.

Now Indiana Democrats fear Dr. Crane may parlay his My Lai trial publicity into a bid for the House. That could give Congress its first brother team since Sen. Thurston Morton, R-Ky., left the Senate in 1969. Now his brother, Rogers, has left Congress to become Interior Secretary.

S. Viet Election—As Laos Goes?

By BRUCE BLOSSAT.

WASHINGTON (NEA) — The South Vietnamese incursion into the Laotian panhandle is not an election campaign, but it has a bearing on one.

In September the South Vietnamese choose the membership of their lower legislative house, and in October they again elect a president. How well or badly the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong are doing on the battlefield in 1971 will affect Hanoi's ability to influence the elections. Naturally enough, it seeks maximum impact.

Should the Saigon army (ARVN) succeed in breaking the North Vietnamese flow of men and materiel down the Ho Chi Minh trail in Laos, keep the clamps on until the rainy season in May and possibly wipe out large food and weapons caches, they could block any significant Red offensive effort this year.

Hanoi badly needs some kind of sustained high point of activity to maintain its fighting credibility in South Vietnam. If it fails, its shadow over the 1971 elections will be pale indeed. The next dry season along the trail begins a month after the voting.

As noted in a prior report, the military situation in South Vietnam is relatively quiet and stable, even as Laos and Cambodia flare. ARVN forces "in country" have carried the brunt of the active fighting, such as there is, for some months. U.S. units of combat capability are still around in substantial number, but they are generally more of a presence than an aggressive force.

Though — as everyone is noting — the ARVN is getting a heavy test in Laos and could be bloodied, the army's status at home is higher than it has ever been. That is a clear political plus for the Thieu regime and those national elements which choose to support it.

Hanoi will not be able to make political capital out of sporadic mortar and rocket raids on South Vietnamese cities and U.S. or ARVN military bases, even though these surely will catch headlines in the United States. To be effective, these assaults would have to come together in a recognizable offensive, which would take men and supplies in numbers the Reds may not have after Laos.

Since a fair series of Red "high points" far back in 1970, there has not been much of this from Hanoi. Before that, we have to cast back to mid-1969 for evidence of the last Red "main force" action. The bit these days is guerrilla stuff.

Only nine months ago, Red forces still were being overpraised while the ARVN was being ridiculed. Its foray into Cambodia last spring was dismissed as a kind of rice collection service. The fact was the South Vietnamese army already was a reasonably effective force.

It is taking time for old images which do not fit the new reality to be thrown aside and replaced. The old ARVN was riddled by desertions, starved for real fire power, undertrained and badly led from top to bottom.

The whole ARVN story seems different today. In earlier times we heard plenty about desertions. But we never heard, and still do not hear much if anything, about South Vietnamese battle deaths.

Those fatalities, officially come to 120,000 for the entire war — more than twice the battle deaths we suffered in World War I in our 5½ months of real combat. They are a mark of resolve and resistance. The wish to repel Hanoi's armies, and their VC surrogates, has got to be real. No army under a government as fragile as the Thieu-Ky regime need fight and die unless it is determined to stand.

The ARVN 1.1 million men is one of today's largest armies. Needing our sophisticated air, artillery and logistical support, it is plainly not yet altogether a truly effective military force. But to the extent it does well in Laos, it may be on the way to becoming not just that but also a political force 1971 elections.

On Fact-Finding Tour, He Lands in Laos, Incursion Starts

Editor's Note: Ralph Ingersoll was a soldier and war correspondent in World War II. So it is only natural that he is now on a fact-finding tour of the world's troubled spots. This took him to Laos, where his timing was just right. He was there on the day the South Vietnamese incursion began. The American Ambassador to Laos, G. McMurtrie Godley, a Yale alumnus, as is Mr. Ingersoll, arranged for the latter to interview the Laos chief of state, Prince Souvanna Phouma. Mr. Ingersoll, by the way, is president of Mid-Hudson Publications Inc., which operates this newspaper and a now-and-then contributor to its columns.

RALPH INGERSOLL

By RALPH INGERSOLL
VIENTIANE, Laos — This is what's called a delayed dispatch. It was gathered February 3. But its news is still hot. That was the day the sheer weight of observable actions by the U.S. and South Vietnamese Armies and the U.S. Air Force overwhelmed, if not the enemy, at least the news blackout and it finally became impossible even for Saigon and Washington to deny that an invasion of Laos had begun. And I, who had been on a journey around the world to evaluate the effectiveness of the American people's sources of news, found myself in the midst of where the news itself was happening.

I had, a few days before, interviewed our Ambassador to Laos, G. McMurtrie Godley, and been told that talk of a U.S.-backed invasion was nonsense and that the trouble with the war was the irresponsibility of journalists. (Incidentally, this statement — about American journalists, at least — is no more true than was the Ambassador's denial that Something Big was up in Laos).

Then this particular morning, Thursday, February 4, the Prime Minister of Laos, the doughty Souvanna Phouma, had agreed to receive me for an exclusive interview and, possibly concerned by a note of passion in my defense of journalistic integrity, the Ambassador, Mr. Godley, himself, had volunteered to interpret for me. The Prime Minister understands English but prefers to speak in French. Mr. Godley did not want him misunderstood.

Tough, Intelligent
The Ambassador did not need to be concerned. His Highness (he is a prince, too) let nothing important slip. I liked him. He is tough, intelligent and no fool. He recited his piece, which was that he and Laos stood by the Geneva Convention. It "guaranteed" Laos' neutrality, he said, but gave him the right to call for foreign help, if, as and when the Geneva Agreements were violated, which they had been by the North Vietnamese. So he was solidly within his rights when he had called for assistance from the U.S. which he received: all kinds of assistance short of men. (He had first asked munitions of the Russians, and had been refused.)

I have to remark here that he paraphrased another famous Prime Minister, Winston Churchill, who once put it, also to the U.S. in World War II: "Give us the tools and we'll finish the job." But that had not quite stood the test of history. Did Souvanna Phouma expect his position would?

He sighed, an answer not readily translatable. That morning, Feb. 4, the enemy had taken several important key positions on the nearest edge of the Plain of Jars which is the whole north third of the country and is separated from the Central Plain of Vientiane (where we were) only by a ridge of mountains. And, simultaneously, the enemy had also attacked in the South.

These joint offensives, the Prime Minister explained, were in explicit reaction to his refusing to negotiate with the pathet Lao — his local Communists — unless and until North Vietnam withdrew from within his borders.

To meet these attacks, the Prime Minister spelled out, he had no reserves of any kind. The fighting hill people in the North, the Meo tribesmen, were no longer an effective force. He did not defend his own "royal Lao" army's effectiveness (he merely asked for weapons and supplies of all kinds for them).

I can interject here that the only damaging counter measures available to the Laotian leader to apply to the North Vietnam expansion in Laos are some two hundred C.I.A. personnel operating secretly in the field, and the U.S. Air Force, bombing mainly from nearby Thai Bases. Their targets, by the way, are passed on personally by the U.S. Ambassador. You have to take the C.I.A.'s role in this on my word because, while everyone involved knows it, it is officially a non-fact in our lexicon as, of course, the presence of any North Vietnamese troops in Laos is a non-fact in the Communists' Wonderland.

Took No Issue

So, to get back to my briefing by the prince on February 4, I asked him, "What now?" He took no issue with me when, answering his silence, I said, "then the situation is very, very bad and if the Communists wish to proceed to take over your country, the odds are that they will — since our limited help to date has not been able to contain them."

After a few moments thought, the Laotian chief made a short speech to the effect that it all depended on the settlement of the war between North and South Vietnam (and Cambodia) and that it was obvious that North Vietnam would not negotiate with his country (and until?) the Pathet Lao, not he, spoke for it. Or so I gathered; the French conversation between the prince and the Ambassador was on the rapid side by now and the Ambassador translated only when I specifically asked him to — and then interjected asides to the effect that things were not as bad as the Laotian head made them out to be, that Lao generals exaggerated their problems, that the enemy may have taken key towns and territory but had paid heavily for them, and were definitely being worn down (even if more and more men and material were getting through!).

But all this, of course, was still begging the hot question, that morning of Feb. 4, of whether there was a war not as big as the U.S.-supported South Vietnamese that had already begun. You will have had the answer to that long before you read this but on that Thursday western correspondents were waiting on my word instead of the usual vice versa.

The nearest I got to getting something for them was from a dialogue which went something like this:

The Prime Minister: There are no South Vietnamese troops in Laos.

Interviewer (namely me): But when you told me that North Vietnam had long ago overrun — and virtually annexed — large part of your country (in flagrant violation of the Geneva Convention) could you know what's going on there?

A. But of course not.

Q. Then the reports from Saigon may be true?

A. But of course. But if they are, you understand that it is without my knowledge.

The Ambassador added: Of mine!

The Laotian leader wound up the interview with: If — mind you if — there is fighting between North and South Vietnamese within Laos borders, that is obviously an affair between them and not involving my government, which is neutral, in accordance with the Geneva Agreements.

Well, it's that kind of a war out here. It's a war in which every day bombs drop and nice people who can't dodge them get maimed and killed but of officially there are neither Communist North Vietnamese soldiers nor anti-Communist C.I.A. bases and operatives. The unhappy Laotians wish only that we'd all go away.

Fact Obvious
To which I can testify unequivocally, even after only a week here, because the fact of it is so overwhelmingly obvious.

After that exclusive interview (so hot at the time and so warmed over now) the good Embassy set up, for me, a day's flying out to as many refugee camps as we could cover — out in a wonderful short take-off prop job, a Swiss-made high-wing Porter, and then around in a couple of the cast-off Marine helicopters that the Aid to International Development program has inherited. It was a deeply moving experience.

Out of some two million inhabitants (nobody's ever counted them), 280,000 citizens of Laos have been so harassed by the other sides discipline or our bombs, or both, that they have uprooted themselves and are now being fed and looked after by the hardest working, genuinely humanitarian young Americans it has been my gratification to spend time with lately. In a warmed over "delayed dispatch" there is not space to do them honor. They are the Ugly Americans whose job is to bind wounds made by others, to try to heal, to "do what they can." Beyond that, they are helpless.

I've read long intelligent and conscientious reports (furnished by our Ambassador) of the life that is being imposed on Laos people in territories taken over by the alien Communists. I've met the young scholar who researched and wrote them — his name is Edwin McKeithen, a worker in the AID program — and I believe him. The Communists are dedicated to the total restructuring of the Laos way of life — and the refugee population is unimpeachable evidence that what is being imposed is as alien and as unpleasant to Laotians as a Spanish Conquistador's version of Christianity must have been to the Aztecs.

But what have we to offer them but a frying pan to leap into to escape the fire?

Seem B-align

No, it is not as bad as that. The refugee housings which our side has set up seemed to me as benign as refugee camps can be. The good will of our people is patent — and they are not trying to impose Western Culture. But Western Culture has already imposed itself in this alien world, not on the refugee camps, but on the capital cities and the economies of all Southeast Asia.

One gets in these parts, an overwhelming feeling that whole civilizations here are in an advanced stage of being ground between the millstones of two too powerful alien cultures — both incidentally Western. The Communists culture is as foreign as ours, and it has come from the brain of a last century German do-gooder by the name of Karl Marx.

Alas, what was begun as a delayed news report, seems to have turned into something quite different. Take it, then, for what it is: the first wave of reactions to this Wonderland. Peace! I leave it to those who edit this to decide whether they wish to print this so-delayed dispatch from their roving correspondent.

I am now off to the Island of Bali which belongs to another emerging nation, Indonesia, and which shed its share of blood in the controversy between worlds that was not of its making.

Capital Punishment

February 26, 1971

Editor, The Freeman:

Of late I have heard it said by clergymen, as individuals and as councils, that the Holy Bible speaks against Capital Punishment. Just where this is found in God's Word is beyond me. I am afraid that the Bible has how become the victim of man's theory and philosophy, for when God's Word and man's thinking clash, then it seems that the Bible must give way.

God is very outspoken in regard to capital punishment. God says that the murderer must pay for his crime with his own life. I refer to Exodus 21:12 which says, "He that smiteth a man so that he die, shall surely be put to death."

Then again in Genesis 9:6 God says, "Who so sheddeth man's blood by man shall his blood be shed". Also in Leviticus 24:17 we read, "He that killeth any man shall surely be put to death". These are but a few of the verses in God's Word that pronounce the death penalty on the murderer. Please note, that these are not my words, but those of the Almighty God. The crime of murder is horrible, cruel and extremely sinful, and the punishment is extremely severe. The God who gives all life clearly tells man never to terminate that life, for when he does he then must face the judgment of God.

It is clear that when we read what God has to say about the crime of murder, that we must distinguish between the Crime and the Punishment. When God says, as He does in Exodus 20:13 "Thou shall not kill" that He is speaking of the crime and not of the punishment for that crime. I believe that all right thinking people cringe from both the Crime and the Punishment of Murder, however, God has spoken and we must bow to His Word and Will.

Respectfully,

In Janitors' Defense

Feb. 25, 1971

Editor, The Freeman:
Conservatives and Liberals usually don't bridge the communications gap too well on many issues, but we are two Conservative party members who heartily agree with Liberal party chairman, Stephen Korchowsky in his defense of janitors who were suspended without pay for 3-5 days because they took leave of their jobs a little early on Christmas Eve. Let's hope the scrooges responsible for this injustice will have a change of heart and promptly reimburse these men's confiscated wages, a modest sum they can ill afford to lose.

Editor, The Freeman:
In reference to your Feb. 12, 1971 editorial regarding "Unfair Provisions," let me make this statement.
Unemployment insurance is not paid by the employer. It is supplemental just like hospitalization, vacation, maternity leave, sick leave.

The amount of money that is paid by our employers for these benefits is just like the hidden taxes we pay.

The unknowledgeable person is led to believe that the employer is giving these things to us as a gift, but if they were included in our wages, the wages would be quite a few percentage points higher than they are.

Please do not try to delude the public by such editorials. The assumption is false. Before the Wagner Labor Relations Act was passed, the employer had us peons by the throat, but not today and all employers have been crying in their beer ever since.

Very truly yours,

Deserter Held After Chase in Stolen Vehicle

NEW PALTZ — Pursued by State Troopers by car and on foot after he passed a red traffic light in the village at 2 a. m. Sunday, 18-year-old Alfred Scott of 12 North Grand Avenue, Poughkeepsie found himself in trouble with Albany and federal authorities.

Troopers B. S. O'Connor and P. A. Koenig of Highland were on patrol when they spotted a car speeding past a red light and heading out Route 32. The troopers gave chase and near the State University College campus, the driver of the pursued vehicle lost control and the car went into a ditch.

The operator, later identified as Scott took off on foot. O'Connor and Koenig gave chase and later took Scott in custody near the college property.

Investigation disclosed the vehicle Scott was driving had been reported stolen in Albany, pending further investigation.

Motorist Faces Four MV Charges

ELLENVILLE — A New York City motorist was cited for four vehicle and traffic violations early today, after his car skidded out of control on ice, entered a service station parking lot on Route 209 and caused damage to four parked vehicles.

Trooper W. G. Lawrence reported William F. Baxter was driving his car south on the highway south of Route 52 in the Town of Wawarsing at 2:45 a. m. today, when the vehicle struck a patch of ice and slid out of control.

The car veered off the left side of the highway and hit a car parked in a lot at the Walter Lewis Service Station next to the Ellenville Mobile Homes lot. The force of the impact pushed other cars against each other, resulting in heavy damage to four vehicles.

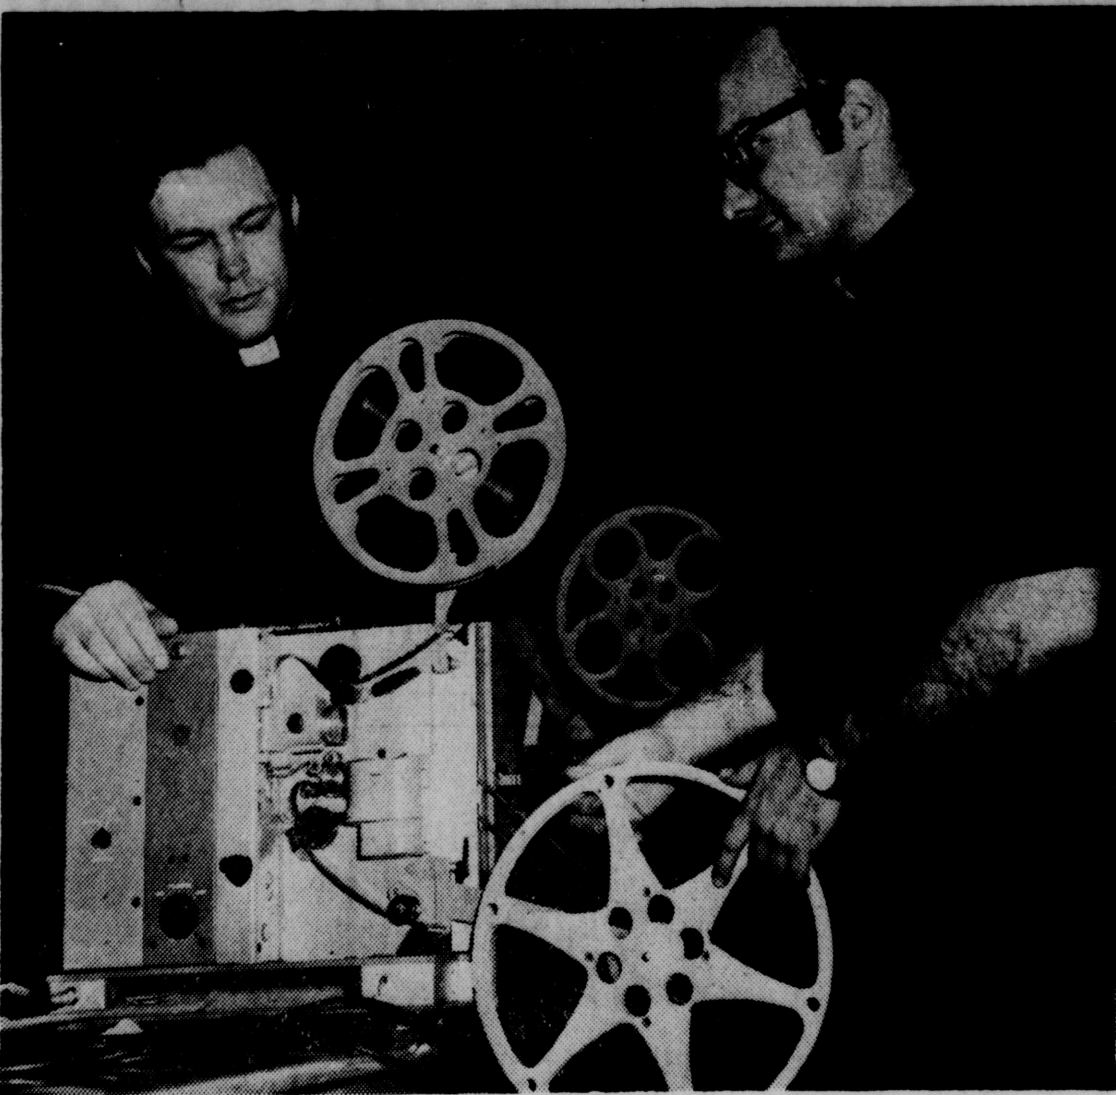

Trooper Lawrence cited Baxter for driving an unregistered motor vehicle, unlicensed operation, having no proof of insurance and failure to keep to the right.

The summonses are returnable before Town Justice Maurice Rosenstock.

Lower Soviet Prices

MOSCOW (UPI)—Price reduction on some consumer goods took effect today, the TASS news agency said.

It said some television sets were reduced in price by 19 to 30 per cent and washing machines 16 per cent. Other items reduced include motorcycles, motor scooters, motor bikes and electric razors.

RELIGIOUS EDUCATION — A multi-media penance service was held Ash Wednesday evening for junior and senior high school students of the middle and primary Catholic schools at the start of the Lenten period. The film was shown by (L-R) the Rev. Kenneth Sidlak, CSSR and the Rev. Eric Hoag, CSSR, of the Redemptorist Order. This was the first in a series of a religious education program to continue each Wednesday from 7 to 8 p. m. at St. Mary's School. Sister Rosemary Polt is coordinator of the program.

Ellenville Man Held on Charge Of Trespassing

ELLENVILLE — A 21-year-old man was arrested at 11 p. m. Sunday by police on a charge of criminal trespass third degree, after he was accused of going into a residence at 7 Water Street, this village.

William Oliver of 221 Canal Street, became ill after his arrest and he was taken to the Community Hospital for treatment and examination. Bail was fixed at $100 pending a hearing before Police Justice Ronald W. Elias.

Police also reported the arrest of Michael Depuy, 19, of 29 North Main Street, who was charged with unlawfully dealing with a child. The complaint involved alcoholic beverages, police said.

Another arrest made Sunday involved Felipe Oyola Rosa, 23, of 7 Eaton Court, this village. He was charged with petit larceny involving the alleged theft of a jar of vaseline from an establishment operated by Richard Rothman, police said.

Ellenville Dying Is Charge of Demo Candidate

ELLENVILLE — Dr. Michael Tannenbaum, Democratic candidate for Ellenville Village Trustee today charged that the beautiful village in which he grew up in had deteriorated to the point that it was "dying."

"It seems to me that all of the young people that I grew up with have refused to make their homes and future in Ellenville," said the young newcomer to the political world.

Dr. Tannenbaum continued, "The reason the people who have grown up in Ellenville do not want to make their lives and futures here is because Ellenville has become a place where nothing is offered. It is difficult to get a decent job and unless you are a professional or a businessman, you have no hope for a decent job or a decent future. This was not the case years ago."

"I believe the question boils down to simply whether the people of Ellenville feel that this community has improved or deteriorated over the last 15 years of Republican control. When the people answer that question they will know whether or not we need a change before it is too late," Dr. Tannenbaum concluded.

Cards Mailed To Non-Voters For 1969, 1970

KINGSTON — Ulster County Board of Elections announced Tuesday that on Friday, Feb. 26, postcards were sent to all persons in Ulster County who had not voted in a General Election in either 1969 or 1970.

According to the Election Law, a return card was enclosed. If a voter has not changed his address and still wants to remain a registered voter, he must fill in the questionnaire and return the card to the Board of Elections Office, County Office Building, Kingston.

If there are any questions regarding a received card, voters are urged to contact the Board of Elections immediately because all persons will be cancelled within four weeks of mailing, if the return card is not received.

If any voter has moved since last registering they are urged to re-register to be eligible to vote.

Drunk Driving Is Charged in Route 9W Crash

TOWN OF ULSTER — A 26-year-old motorist was slightly injured at 3 a. m. Sunday and he was later cited for driving while intoxicated, following a mishap on Route 9W at the Route 199 ramp in this township.

According to Troopers J. J. Gallagher and John Kohlander, Robert East of 9 Dalewood Street, Town of Ulster, was northbound when he pulled out to pass a car driven by Werner Luck of Hyde Park. The vehicles collided and the East car struck a sign post and came to a stop in a pile of snow.

East complained of pains. He was taken to Benedictine Hospital for examination. The drunken driving charge is pending in the town justice's court.

Thayer Offers Reward for Stepping Stone

KINGSTON — A "substantial" reward is being offered by Harry M. Thayer, president of radio station WGHQ, for information leading to the recovery of a carriage stone apparently stolen Saturday night from its lodging place in front of 43 Crown Street.

The stone, approximately 30 inches in diameter and two feet high, had been used years ago as a stepping stone for persons disembarking from their carriage at that location.

Persons with information should contact Thayer at WGHQ.

Chastity Belts
LONDON (UPI) — Chastity belts are not "safety devices" — they're for wearing. At least according to British customs and excise officials.

British craftsmen who make the wrought-iron belts, which are exported mainly to the United States and Sweden, asked customs to exempt them from sales tax on grounds they are "safety devices."

Not so, ruled the government.

See Progress on New Arterial in Town of Esopus

By ALBERT J. CAWEIN

SLEIGHTSBURG
Contacts with residents of Sleightsburg for discussion of acquisition of land and relocation by agents of the State Department of Transportation are indications that the arterial highway through the Town of Esopus is progressing toward a point of visible action.

M. Nicholas Sinacori, the department's district engineer at the Poughkeepsie office this weekend confirmed that the contacts are being made. However, he could not say how these contacts will result in early construction if the new highway is routed through Kingston into the Town of Ulster.

Agents with letters of identification from the State Department of Transportation have been contacting homeowners along the arterial route in Sleightsburg during the past week. When preliminary agreements are reached they will be contacted on the purchase of their property by the state.

The proposed arterial highway as currently designed will start from Route 9W near Esopus Lake south of Port Ewen. The Strand and Ferry Street is currently underway.

The arterial as planned will proceed through Kingston on a new alignment of Hasbrouck Avenue and intersect with a traffic circle to be established at Route 32 at the Town Ulster line.

Several hearings have been held on the project. At one held at the State Armory in 1967, the major recommendation by Town of Esopus residents and officials and it appeared that the alignment through that township met with agreement of the majority of the residents and officials.

The most serious objections came from the Town of Ulster, whose officials objected to the deaden of the arterial at Route 209-199 cloverleaf and the traffic snarl it would cause for patrons of the adjacent shopping centers.

During the ensuing years some changes have been made by the State Department of Transportation but at subsequent meetings in the Town of Ulster, there still was no complete agreement.

In September, last year Kingston Common Council voted 9 to 4 approving the proposed city north-south arterial. At the time it was reported that construction was expected to get started in about two years, following acquisition of property and relocation of homeowners along the proposed alignment. A cloverleaf is proposed for the junction of Hasbrouck and Delaware Avenues. The section the department would be a limb from Rondout to Route 32 was slated access highway with two reported to cost about $20 million each 24 feet wide and separated by a 26-foot mall.

North Dutchess Puts Out Call For Junk Cars

RED HOOK

Residents of the Town of Red Hook and its included Villages of Red Hook and Tivoli are being asked to notify town highway superintendent Lawrence Hagen if they wish to dispose of junk cars.

County Representative Madison Sipperley Jr., R Red Hook, has organized a deal with the John Reich scrap metal company to rid the area of the unwanted junk cars, with the cooperation of officials of the three municipalities.

Coordinating the program, beginning in March, are Tivoli Mayor Mortimer Appel, Red Hook Village Clerk Francis Rabbett and Hagen.

Blanks to be distributed to residents explains that Reich will ship the cars to New Jersey on barges where the metal will be recycled for steel mills.

The cleanup period will continue through March, and after that the local ordinance prohibiting junk cars will be strictly enforced.

Rabbett told The Freeman that the coordinators will have the requested junk cars picked up where they sit and towed to a pickup point, where Reich and his crew will proceed to strip down and load them on barges.

It is hoped that the program can be done in the form of neighborhood projects. At least one wrecker will be available to assist owners in moving cars to a position for loading on trailers.

Other items which Reich will take for a special new machine which shreds the steel are junk stoves, refrigerators, water tanks, bedsprings and other scrap metal.

Reich's company has all but cleaned Columbia County of its junk cars, and is operating in southern Dutchess County from a site in Beacon.

GSA Seeks Bids On Rehab of PO For Ellenville

ELLENVILLE

The General Services Administration has announced that sealed bids are being solicited from small business concerns for improvements to the U.S. Post Office in Ellenville.

The work will include the installation of air conditioning equipment and lighting fixtures at an estimated cost of $25,000 to $100,000 according to Gerald J. Turetsky, regional administrator.

Bidding material may be obtained from the GSA, D & C Division, Room 2437, 26 Federal Plaza, New York City, 10007.

Bids for the project will be received until 1:30 p.m. local time at the GSC offices in New York City, at which time they will be publicly opened and read.

Assessors Set Monthly Meets In Marbletown

MARBLETOWN

The board of assessors of the Town of Marbletown will meet at the town clerk's office from 7 to 8 p.m. monthly for the convenience of property owners who wish to discuss their assessments.

Meeting dates have been set as follows: March 11, April 8, May 13 and June 15 which is also Grievance Day with hours from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Also, July 8, Aug. 12, Sept. 9, Oct. 14, Nov. 11 and Dec. 9.

Assessors will meet March 11 and April 8 from 7 to 9 p.m. in the town clerk's office to assist eligible taxpayers in filling out application forms for exemptions. The forms may be obtained by calling Benjamin Van Wagenen, chairman or Ward Jensen and James Chick.

Suominen Sisters of Rifton Recent Brides

Mr. and Mrs. Arne E. Suominen Sr. of Rifton announce the recent wedding of their daughters, Sophia Ann and Miriam Jean, to Richard Joseph Scully and Clifford Francis Kellerhouse, respectively. Richard Scully is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James W. Scully Sr. of Kingston and Clifford Kellerhouse is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis P. Kellerhouse of Pine Street, West Hurley.

Sophia Ann and Richard were married Saturday, Feb. 6 at Old Dutch Church, Kingston. The Rev. Arthur E. Oudemool officiated at the double ring ceremony. Miss Cindy Jones, organist, provided traditional wedding selections. Baskets of white gladioli decorated the altar and satin bows marked the family pews.

Miriam Jean and Clifford were wed Saturday, Feb. 27 at West Hurley United Methodist Church. The Rev. J. Filson Reid officiated at the double ring ceremony. Mrs. Claudia Haines played wedding selections. Arrangements of white gladioli decorated the altar and white satin bows marked the family pews.

The sisters were given in marriage by their father. Mrs. Scully selected an empire A-line traditional white gown of Chantilly lace. The ring scalloped neckline was enhanced with a soft bow. Her detachable train was bordered with matching scalloped lace. A three-tiered silk illusion veil was attached to a stylized rosette outlined with pearls and sequins. She carried a bridal bouquet of white roses and white streamers.

Linda Lee Wamsley of Ulster Park served as matron of honor in a gown of royal blue velvet, styled with an empire waistline, cape sleeves and circular neckline, and accented with white daisies at the waistline. A four-tier veil was held by a blue velvet bow. She carried a nosegay of light blue carnations and light blue streamers.

Maid of honor was Miriam Suominen 'Kellerhouse' sister of the bride. Helen Slover of Ulster Park served as an attendant. Their gowns were similar in styling to that of the matron of honor in royal red and dark green velvet, respectively. The maid of honor carried a nosegay of pink carnations with pink streamers and the attendant carried a nosegay of yellow carnations with yellow streamers. All of the attendants' gowns and headpieces were made by the matron of honor.

Kenneth Joseph Wamsley of Ulster Park was best man. Ushers were Charles Ray Suominen, brother of the bride, New Paltz, and Cecil C. Cobb of Rifton.

A reception for 50 guests was held at Moose Lodge, 82 Prince Street, Kingston. For her wedding trip, the pearl-edged leaves and she carried a cascade of miniature carnations.

Mary Kellerhouse, sister of the bridegroom, West Hurley; Cheryl Malone, Ulster Park; Jane VonBargen, Stone Ridge; and Gaetana Ciarlante, Glasco, were attendants. Their gowns were styled similarly to that of the honor attendant's in apricot and orange, aqua and peacock, pink and scarlet red, mint and moss green. They wore matching velvet headpieces and carried cascade bouquets of miniature carnations.

Richard Scully of Albany Avenue Extension, Kingston, was best man. Ushers were Freddie Kellerhouse, cousin of the bridegroom, Wawarsing; Robert Sickler, Hunter Street, Kingston; Bruce Williams, Maverick Lane, Glenford; and Thomas Pape, Kingston.

A reception for 125 guests was held at Moose Lodge, 82 Prince Street.

For her wedding trip, the bride selected a white silk dress with gold trim and brown accessories.

The bride, a 1970 graduate of Kingston High School, is employed at Waldbaum's in Kingston. Her husband attended Oteora Central School and was employed by Island Dock. Sp 4 Kellerhouse is serving in the U.S. Army, recently stationed in Korea.

The couple will reside at Lake Katrine until March 24 when Sp 4 Kellerhouse will leave for Germany for a year's stay. His bride will join him at a later date.

To Kingston Savings Bank,
"mortgage"
is not a dirty word.

Half of our motto is, "Provide for the future."

There's meaning behind those words. And money, too. Money we've allocated specifically for mortgage loans. Not for some far away place where we can get higher rates.

For right here in our county. Now. For you.

If you want to build or buy a home this year, talk to a Kingston Savings Bank mortgage officer. After a brief, confidential talk, if we can say yes, that's what we'll say.

Oh, about the other half of our motto: "Preserve the past." We can apply that to Home Improvement Loans.

In other words, we expect our "loan approved" stamp to wear out rather fast this year.

Marriages Reported Here

Mrs. William Weber of High Falls announces the marriage of her daughter, Caroline Mary, to Alton K. Krom of High Falls. The wedding took place Friday, Feb. 12 at United Methodist Church in New Paltz. The Rev. Roy Hassell officiated at the double ring candlelight ceremony.

The bride, escorted by her uncle, Thomas Walsh, wore a full length lace gown, accented with Alencon lace embroidery on the bodice and sleeves. The gown featured an embroidered lace train. A headpiece of nylon petals and seed pearls held her fingertip veil and she carried a spray of red and white carnations.

Mrs. Weber was matron of honor for her daughter in a royal blue velvet gown with light blue satin trim. She carried a bouquet of blue and white carnations.

Joseph Ligotino of New Paltz served as best man.

Mrs. Krom is a graduate of Rondout Valley High School and is serving in the Women's U.S. Marine Corps.

Her husband is president of the New Paltz Movers and Storage, Inc., New Paltz.

The marriage of Mrs. Inda Miller of Roxbury, N. Y., to James Ford of Shandaken, took place February 12 at the home of Mrs. Miller's son, Harry F. Miller, at North Claverack. The Rev. John R. Hawkins Jr. officiated.

The bride was attended by Mrs. Harry F. Miller as matron of honor, and Miss Sally Miller and Miss Peggy Ford as bridesmaids. Robert Ford was best man. The bride was given in marriage by Harry F. Miller.

A buffet luncheon was served to friends and relatives from Johnstown, Roxbury, Shandaken, Mt. Tremper and Hudson.

After a trip to Boston and Lynn, Mass. Mr. and Mrs. Ford will make their home in Shandaken.

Hints From Heloise

By HELOISE

Dear Heloise:

I think most everyone has a drawer full of snapshots that they just never seem to get around to putting into albums.

I have one of those new type albums where you can just slide in the pictures, but the refills get expensive. The albums with the black pages are much cheaper, but I don't like the corner tabs to hold the pictures.

As we are moving soon, I was determined to get this chore taken care of. So I hit on the idea of using the tape that is sticky on both sides. I put two small strips on the back of each picture and just pressed them into the album. 'Twas fast as could be.

I sat down one evening and did all my pictures and believe me, I had about a three-year collection!

Mrs. Jack Harris

Well, I'd like to include a picture of YOU in MY album for sending in this quickie, doll. Now you'll have an extra drawer in which you can stash away more nifty hints for our readers... but please don't wait three years to send 'em!

Heloise

Dear Heloise:

I use placemats with a foam backing every day and find that after wiping the table they tend to stick and the backing comes off.

As I make Christmas tree skirts out of white felt and always have some leftover, I decided to glue some of this felt on the back of my mats.

Worked beautifully and I have no more sticking problems.

Pauline Deterly

Dear Heloise:

This is a doozy, and turned out to be quite a surprise to me...

Last Sunday I baked a cake in an oblong pan, prepared a nice fudge frosting to top it with, and, as usual, in putting it on, smeared it all up trying to make some fancy curlicues.

Then the thought occurred to me to try using one beater of my hand mixer and see what happened.

Using the very lowest speed, I proceeded to lightly run the beater over the icing and came up with a beautiful design. Was I proud of the result!

This method will work on any shape cake.

Mrs. C. Sedive

Dear Heloise:

Invalids and elderly people who must spend the day in a wheel chair need all the care and comforts we can give them.

We bought a thick piece of foam rubber long enough and wide enough to fit the wheel-chair back and seat—all in one piece.

After putting on a pillowslip of thin plastic which we made to fit the sponge rubber to keep it clean, we pulled two regular pillowslips over this, one from each end.

These pillowcases can be changed whenever needed to keep it all fresh and clean. Thoughtful and Salem Street at 8:30 p.m. Games will be the main activity of the evening and Sheila Austin, game chairman, has organized booths which will challenge and entertain everyone. There will be a ping pong blowing machine with Lou and Sheila Klein in charge; turtle racing booth, handled by Mike and Marilyn Johnson. Sit-down games will be provided by Marvin Schildhorn and Stan Austin, as well as guessing games, water pistol booth, golf putting, horseshoe pitching, dart booth, pie eating contest, managed by Paula Gally, Caryl Kramer, Nathan and Sandy Borsky, Burt and Sandy Feit, Bill and Sara Ohsie, Linda Weiner, Thelma Weinberger, Burt and Sandy Mehl, John and Phyllis Hornak.

Suitable awards will be made to game winners including dinner for two at a leading Kingston restaurant and a kosher turkey.

An auction will climax the evening with guests bidding for mystery gifts which include small appliances, beauty aids, household articles, wearing apparel, and entertainment. Muriel Weinstein promises gifts are plentiful and pleasing.

Food and beverages will be available from chairman Helene Schildhorn. There will also be a bake sale at Ye Olde Crumbe Shoppe. Norma Goldschlag is chief baker.

Carnival chairman, Sheila Klein, and co-chairman Marilyn Johnson and Sandra Mehl, invite the public to attend for an evening of inexpensive fun for the family.

By ALISON GODDARD
NEW YORK (MW)—It's not whether you youngsters wear there hair long or short that counts, it's whether they know which sex they are. If they're confused about this, says professor Charles Winick, they might have trouble coming to grips with other things as well.

Professor Winick, who describes this blurring of sexual identity in his book, "The New People," views the development with some concern. He believes the look-alike trend, sometimes described as "unisex," can only lead to difficulties because people are able to "cope with situations and problems to the extent that they have a clear feeling of their own personal identity."

While look-alike hairstyles worn by young men and women have caused considerable furor among parents, school administrators and others, they do not particularly concern Professor Winick, who teaches sociology at the City University of New York. He regards the matter of hairstyles as "inconsequential" and says it's a subject that's easy to ridicule. The really critical component, he asserts, is not the hair but "the confusion of sex roles." And Winick adds, "although men once wore satins, silks and powdered wigs, the way of life in those times left no dispute as to who was masculine and who was feminine."

Love Loses Mystery
Citing the present tendency to regard neither masculinity

nor femininity as an "important dimension," Professor Winick finds as a result that the relationship between the sexes "lacks fantasy," and that "love has lost its mystery." Declaring that this is particularly true in Denmark and Sweden—because of their greater sexual equality—he describes life in those countries as "flat, uninteresting and singularly joyless." He also predicts similar consequences for the United States in "about 10 or 15 years."

Although he acknowledges that "it's good for young people to cast about for new forms of social life and various new types of family situations," Professor Winick points out they can adapt to new situations best when they have a clear sense of personal identity. "Central to this identity," he asserts, "is their awareness of being male or female." The more confused the sex role, he warns, "the greater possibility of mental and emotional illness."

Prepared for the Change
This confusion of sex roles which pervades our environment, says Professor Winick, would be meeting more opposition if our young people had not been previously prepared for the change. But, he adds, "our culture itself demands that childhood reflect our new values." Specifically, he notes,

Members of the Board of Sisterhood Ahavath Israel are asked to attend an early meeting at 7:15 p.m. on March 3 immediately preceding the regular meeting.

Mrs. Henry Jacobs, Ahavath Israel, has announced that a Bazaar will be held on March 20 to 23. Now is the time to help solicit merchandise for this event and anyone interested in helping is asked to contact Mrs. Jacobs. Bazaar will feature all new merchandise at bargain prices, refreshments, and games for children and adults.

The donor affair this year will be a theater party to "No, No Nanette" on Wednesday, June 16.

Dietician Named

The appointment of Miss Sheila Neptune as therapeutic dietician at Kingston Hospital was recently announced by Michael Pagliaro, personnel director.

Formerly of Trinidad, West Indies, Miss Neptune earned a Bachelor of Science in Home Economics, majoring in food service and nutrition at McGill University, Montreal, and served her internship at Freedmen's Hospital in Washington, D. C. She worked as dietician at Saint Luke's Hospital, Cleveland, Ohio. In 1966 she completed her Master of Science in foods and human nutrition at London University, London, England.

Miss Neptune returned to Canada and served as chief therapeutic dietician at the Whitby Psychiatric Hospital in Ontario. Immediately previous to her employment at Kingston Hospital, she was involved in a nutrition project for the elderly in Buffalo, funded jointly by the federal government and Erie County.

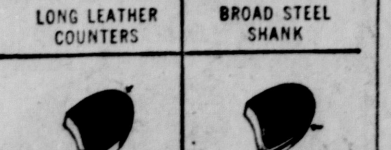

"I enjoy travel and feel the prospect of living in a new community and meeting new people exciting and challenging," Miss Neptune commented on her joining the staff of Kingston Hospital and becoming a resident of the area. She resides at 38 Staples Street, Kingston.

Pine Bush Wrestlers Capture Section 9 Title

BOICEVILLE FINAL STANDING
School	Ists	Pts
Pine Bush	2	77
Wallkill	2	72
Ontoera	1	67
Rondout Valley	3	60
Ellenville	1	54
New Paltz	3	46
Kingston	1	13

Pine Bush High School wrestlers climaxed a highly successful season Saturday by winning the Section 9 District II championship to go with their 1971 Ulster County Athletic League (UCAL) title.

Coach Bob Bender's six finalists could win only two individual titles, but the team's 77 points were five better than runnerup Wallkill High. Rondout Valley and New Paltz had the most champions—three apiece—while Wallkill picked up two, third place Ontoera (67 points) and Ellenville (54 points) had one each.

The two undefeated wrestlers in the finals came through in impressive fashion. Heavyweight Charles Kaune of Kingston High pinned Pete Johnson of Ontoera in 3:06 and Rondout Valley's 115-pound whiz, Tom Coddington, decided Al Zwart of Pine Bush, 13-2.

The Bushmen's two titlists were Dennis Greco, who decided Tom Digsby of Wallkill, 7-5, for the 122-pound laurels. He drew a first round bye. Rondout's Dennis Baney decided George Lamonia of Pine Bush, 7-5, for the 170 pound title. Baney pinned Tom Thoben of New Paltz, in 51 seconds of the first round and pinned Norm Buzzanco of Kingston in 2:34 of the semi-finals.

Two of the championships were decided in overtime. Joe Williams of New Paltz decided John Langling of Ontoera, 5-3 in the 135-pound finals and Ed Koons of Wallkill scored 1-0 over Pine Bush's Mike Greco at 101 pounds.

Bill Murat of Rondout decided Britt St. John of Ontoera, 7-5, for the 122-pound laurels. He drew a first round bye. Rondout's Dennis Baney decided George Lamonia of Pine Bush, 7-5, for the 170 pound title. Baney pinned Tom Thoben of New Paltz, in 51 seconds of the first round and pinned Norm Buzzanco of Kingston in 2:34 of the semi-finals.

Two of the championships were decided in overtime. Joe Williams of New Paltz decided John Langling of Ontoera, 5-3 in the 135-pound finals and Ed Koons of Wallkill scored 1-0 over Pine Bush's Mike Greco at 101 pounds.

Pete Rock, New Paltz's 141 pound champion, drew a first round bye, then pinned Terry Tougas of Ontoera in 1:12 and decided Bill Vingo of Wallkill in the finals.

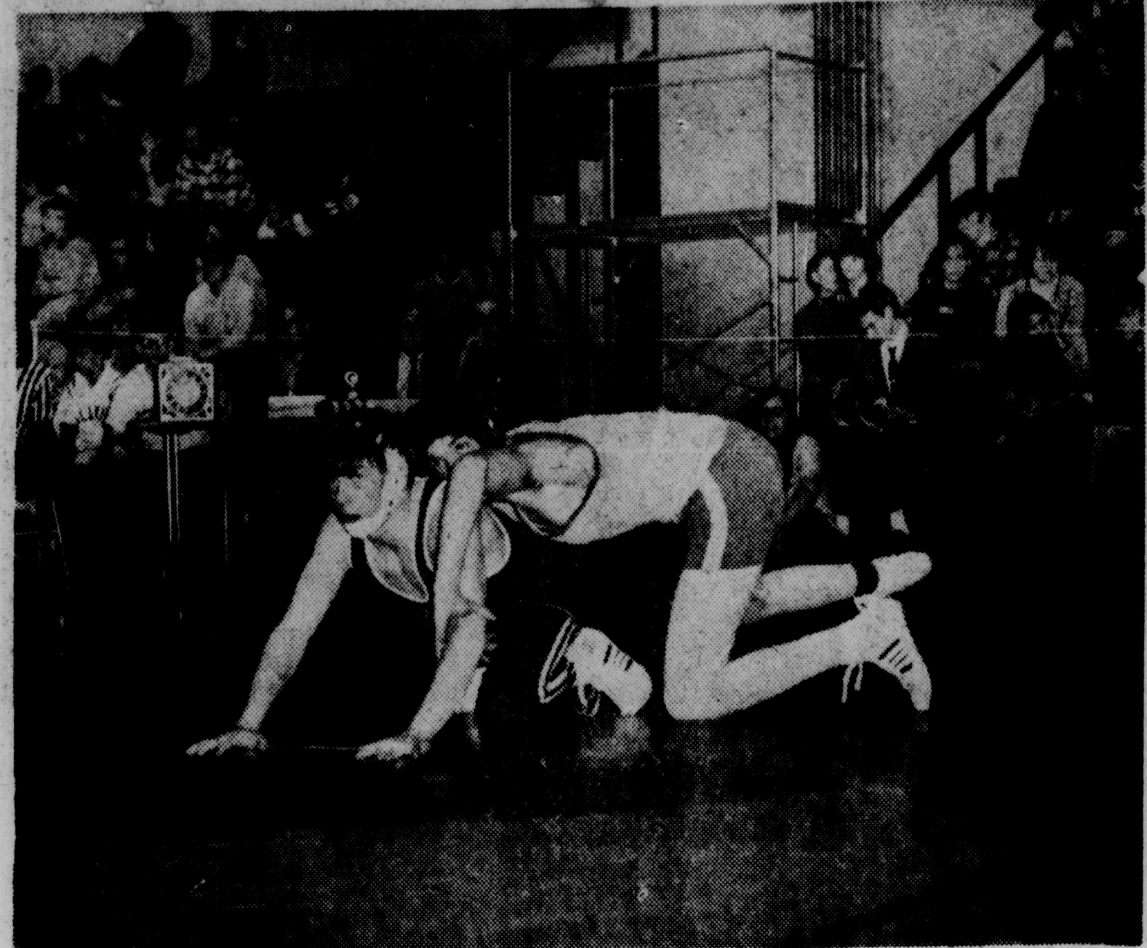

Pat Lamaestra of Ellenville High emerged as the 148 pound champion. He decided Mark Schreiber of New Paltz, 9-0; pinned Leon Faulkner of Ontoera in 5:16 and won an 8-3 decision over Norm Miller of Pine Bush in the finals.

Lamaestra was voted the Most Valuable Wrestler in the tournament.

Kent St. John of Ontoera advanced to the 108 pound finals via a bye and 5-3 decision over Frank Manesky of Ellenville. Britt St. John, the 122 pound finalist, decided Warren Van Houten, 15-3, and decided John Ollive of Kingston, 9-8.

Langling was given a first round bye, then won an 18-5 decision over Dom Mannino of Pine Bush in the semis. Pete Johnson reached the 218 pound finals with a first round pin (1:07) over Kim Rossner of Wallkill and decision over Bruce Myers of Ellenville.

Kaune had a first round bye, then decided Rich Gilliland of Rondout, 25-4.

JOHN LANTLING (under) of Ontoera High and his opponent, Dom Mannino of Pine Bush, seem to be more pre-occupied with the cameraman than their 135 pound match in the Section 9 wrestling tournament Saturday at Ontoera. (Freeman photo by Kruh).

Potsdam Cagers Check State Hawks in Finale

The basketball season ended as it began for New Paltz State — with a loss — but like a long dormant volcano, rumblings are being heard perhaps in anticipation of an eruption.

Potsdam state jumped out to a quick lead here Saturday and beat the Hawks, 93-81. The loss stopped a three game New Paltz victory streak and gave Coach Si Pesavento's Hudson Valley Birds a final record of 6-20.

Yet the trio of consecutive wins and the performances of Earl Thurner, Steve Galuski, and Bruce Kreutzer, combined with the knowledge that people such as Lee Barrington, Pete Dozier, and Monroe Jones are quickly after intermission, hold-up and coming freshmen have made fans around here excited about the future. And not too New Paltz rallied again and many New Paltz followers have been excited about the future of a Hawk hoop team since the days of Eddie Shuster and Ernie Maywalt.

The last game might have been a win too had not the Hawks spotted Potsdam an 8-9 lead. New Paltz kept making comeback tries but the cool Bears successfully turned them aside.

New Paltz came to within four, 32-28, with 4:11 left in the first half but Potsdam stretched the margin to eight within a minute and led by six, 42-36, at the half.

The upstater started out quickly after intermission, hold-up and coming freshmen have made fans around here excited about the future. And not too New Paltz rallied again and again finally pulling to a 70-69 deficit with just over six minutes showing on the Elting Gym clock.

However, Potsdam withstood the final Hawk push to win handily. The Bears were aided when Galuski fouled out giving them a one and one opportunity from the line. A technical foul on Pesavento meant one more free throw and the ball to settle the final outcome.

Thurner was the key to the New Paltz attack again with 29 points. Galuski had 22, and Kreutzer, still playing with a face mask to protect a broken nose, added, 22.

Pete Riley's 29 led Potsdam. Dave May capped 25, and big Hank Darden did most of the rebounding.

So the season is over but the 6-20 corpse may still be reborn. All that's needed is some fresh blood, though not the kind the Red Cross can offer. Donations may be made in the form of a couple of good shooters, a strong big man, and perhaps a playmaker or two.

The body is warm, not too much is required.

Record Spree at New Paltz

If there is a swimming team in the State University Athletic Conference in better shape than New Paltz for this weekend's tournament at Cortland it must have big tunas going for them.

The Hawks have not only won seven straight dual meets, but they have broken 11 varsity records in their last two outings counting the six shattered in Saturday's 74-39 rout of Adelphi in Elting Gym.

Leading the way, as he has all year, was former prep school All-American Larry Bushey, the freshman from Pittsfield, Mass.

Bushey cracked his own team mark, set a new pool record, and re-wrote the conference standard in the 200 yard individual medley in the sterling time of 2:03.4.

Later, the frosh standout nabbed the 200 yard backstroke in 2:08.4, also a varsity low and a national college division qualifying time.

Diver Steve Morgan, whose performance in the optional category last week set a Hawk mark, this time recorded 183.30 points in the required event for still another springboard honor.

The 100 yard freestyle went to freshman Dennis Connors in 51.9; Mike Janoska's second place showing in the 500 yard freestyle was good enough for a New Paltz record; and the relay team, of Bob Rose, Connors, Janoska, and Bushey, grabbed the 400 yard freestyle in 3:25.0, for the sixth charmed time of the day.

John Quinn was the lone Adelphi ace with three first place finishes.

New Paltz finished the dual meet season at 8-4. Adelphi is 8-7.

Marquette and Fordham Headed for the NCAA

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

Marquette and Fordham expect a ring and Memphis State hopes against a runaround Tuesday when invitations go out for the post-season college basketball tournaments.

The NCAA probably will tap Marquette and Fordham for large berths, but the NIT could be looking past Memphis State.

"Now that we've won our 18th game, it would be very disappointing if we didn't get an NIT bid," said Memphis State Coach Gene Bartow after the Tigers pounded Wichita State 85-77 Saturday night and threw the Missouri Valley Conference race into turmoil.

Memphis, with an 18-7 record, is 8.5 in the Missouri Valley race and still has a chance to catch front-running Louisville, 8.4. Winner of the conference gets an automatic berth in the NCAA tournament—something Bartow wouldn't turn down, either.

Another club which hopes to join Memphis State in New York this month is UC-Santa Barbara, with a 20-6 record against some pretty tough competition.

"Our problem is one of identity," said UC-Santa Barbara Coach Ralph Barkey. "People don't know who we are. But we have made overtures to the Eastern people and we are hopeful of an NIT bid."

The Gauchos, finishing with their best record in history, wound up second to Long Beach State in the Pacific Coast Athletic Association. The champions probably will go the NCAA playoffs, leaving the door open for Santa Barbara in the NIT.

But the California club, which has beaten Memphis State and Louisiana Tech, a highly-ranked small college power, will have to beat back Hawaii's bid in its Far West bailiwick. Hawaii is having one of its best years with a 22-4 record.

Other teams considered NIT material are St. John's of New York Providence; Holy Cross; Syracuse; Rutgers; Massachusetts and St. Bonaventure.

The NCAA, meanwhile, has several entrants already—Penn, Western Kentucky, University of the Pacific, Miami of Ohio and Weber State. All have won conference championships.

Penn, the country's fourth-ranked team, plastered Yale 93-63 Saturday night to win its second straight Ivy League crown; Western Kentucky, No. 9, clouted Murray State 73-59 to cop the Ohio Valley Conference for the second straight year; and Pacific pasted Los Angeles

Loyola 88-75 to take the West Coast Athletic Conference.

Miami, Ohio, won the Mid-American Conference and Weber State took the Big Sky Conference last week.

Marquette's whirlaway Warriors have won 23 games this year and 35 in a row and must be considered the underdog independent choice from the Midwest region by the NCAA selection committee.

Fordham's cinderella team from New York with a 21-2 mark appeared to be a likely choice from the East.

The No. 2-ranked Warriors hammered Tulane 90-76 and Fordham, No. 11, took apart New York University 102-87 in Saturday's action. Duquesne, ranked No. 8 with a 19-3 mark, routed Niagara 99-69 Sunday and must be considered another likely at-large choice from the East.

Notre Dame and Dayton, two teams in the running for an at-large berth from the Midwest, play tonight to decide their fate.

Notre Dame smashed St. John's of New York 92-79 and Dayton whipped Xavier of Ohio 82-76 Saturday night.

Other major independents apparently in the running for the 10 at large berths in the NCAA's 25-team tourney are sixth-ranked Jacksonville, Houston, Villanova, Georgia Tech, Utah State, New Mexico State, and West Texas State. Houston enhanced its posture with an 83-82 victory over Jacksonville Saturday.

Top-ranked UCLA and third-ranked Southern California, battling for the Pacific-8 crown, both won Saturday night and headed toward a title-setting showdown at the end of the season.

UCLA turned back Washington State 57-53 and Southern Cal nipped Washington 81-80.

In other games involving the AP's ranked teams, No. 5 Kansas stopped Colorado 66-65; No. 7 South Carolina walloped North Carolina State 82-69; No. 10 Kentucky whipped Vanderbilt 119-90; 12th-ranked Michigan dropped a 91-85 decision to No. 18 Ohio State; 13th-rated North Carolina tipped Virginia 75-74; St. Joseph's of Philadelphia stunned No. 14 LaSalle 66-56; North Texas State defeated 15th-ranked Louisville 79-73; Utah State, ranked No. 16, bombed New Mexico State 77-67 and 17th-ranked Tennessee chopped Auburn 76-71.

Foster Defends His Ring Title

SCRANTON, Pa. AP) — Bob Foster is disillusioned with the light-heavyweight championship.

"I'll fight anybody if they'll put the money up," said Foster after arriving here for his Tuesday night title defense against Hal "TNT" Carroll, of Syracuse, N.Y.

"Nobody wants to put money up," said the 6-foot-3 Foster.

Foster was trying to explain why he had to fight for "peanuts" in Scranton while only six days later Muhammad Ali and Joe Frazier meet for the heavyweight title for $2.5 million each.

Then why did he have to guarantee Dick Tiger $100,000 in 1968 to get a shot at the 175 pound championship?

"They knew I'd beat Tiger. That's why it cost me," Foster said. "These guys (today's light-heavyweights) know they can't beat me. They sit around and rely on the WBA to snatch the title for them."

That's exactly what the World Boxing Association did. It decided that Foster hadn't defended his title within a reasonable time against a worthy opponent. The WBA said it would recognize as champion the winner of last Saturday night's bout between Vicente Rondon of Venezuela and Jimmy Dupree of Jersey City, N.J.

Rondon, the second-ranked light-heavy, knocked out Dupree, the top-rated challenger, in the sixth of a scheduled 15 rounder. That made him champion in the eyes of the WBA.

Foster said something that meant rubbish. "The WBA," he added, "means nothing to me. They can't take nothing away. I'm still champ until beaten in the ring."

Berry Makes It a Memorable Farewell

By IRA FUSFELD

KINGSTON
It was quite a sight. Ulster County Community College had beaten Delhi Tech, 110-65, here Saturday and ten minutes later Senator basketball star and captain Glenn Berry was still being besieged by a wide-eyed group of young autograph hounds.

"I've never seen a reaction like that to an Ulster player," Coach Mike Perry was to note afterwards.

Berry was the focal point all evening as ceremonies honored his two-year achievements for the Stone Ridge quintet. He'd been a first team All-Region, second team All-Conference, and Most Valuable Player in the Hudson Valley Collar City Classic. And more honors were expected with this season's Conference, Region, and Junior College All-American picks yet to be made.

But Glenn was also to be the central figure in the game on "his night" not usually the case for athletes who frequently are jinxed into sub-par outings on such special occasions.

Not Berry. He went out with a bang.

Glenn entered the tilt with 985 career points. Fourteen minutes 15 seconds remained in the contest when Berry got the ball at the baseline and literally glided over a defender for a layup representing tallies 15 and 16 on the night and 1000 and 1001 for his Ulster reign. The Long Islander was to finish with 27 markers, 1012 all told.

There was more.

Leaping above everyone else on the floor, Glenn made his evening complete with 35 rebounds to set a one game college record. Brad Meyer's 29 was the previous high.

After it was over, after he'd signed his name on countless programs, Glenn quietly answered questions with one word answers.

"No," he said, he wasn't sure which four-year school he'd go to from here, but "yes" he's interested in playing football as a wide receiver, as well as continuing on in basketball.

Coach Perry later said offers have been pouring in from such places as Southampton, Bridgeport, Boston College, New Palz State, Ithaca, Southern Illinois, and Ashland.

The longest statement Berry made was, "I'd like to thank all the people in Kingston." You're welcome, and thank you Glenn.

REBOUNDS: Ulster won its fourth straight in defeating Delhi, the result never being in doubt as U-Tri-C spurred to an 8.0 edge and kept moving. At halftime, the Senators led 64-23.

Roger Govantes and Gary McDonald scored 21 apiece with George Civile, a graduating senior, notching 13. Rich DeLosa had 11, Pat Harder canned 10, and Willis Locke picked up seven.

Cliff Weeks was at a wedding and missed the game which gave UCCC a 17-11 record for the year.

Nicklaus Looking Ahead After PGA Victory

THE WINNING BALL—Jack Nicklaus holds the winning ball as he waves to the gallery on the 18th hole after winning the PGA Golf Championship at Palm Beach. (UPI TELEPHOTO).

PALM BEACH GARDENS, Fla. (AP)—Nobility has ever won the PGA U.S. Open. Masters and British Open in the same year.

Jack Nicklaus has it on his mind.

"I've got one leg and I'm thinking about the Masters," he said. "And, that's a golf course I know I can play."

The svelte Golden Bear shot 73 Sunday for a seven-under-par 281 total to win the 53rd Professional Golfers Association Championship at the tough PGA National Golf Club.

"Normally, I head for the Masters trying to get a first leg on the Big Four," said the 31-year-old fairways giant. "This time I've got the first leg."

The PGA, normally the last of the Big Four events in August, was moved to February for one time only.

The Masters comes up in April at Augusta, Ga., the U.S. Open is scheduled at Merion Country Club at Ardmore, Pa., in June and the British Open at Royal Birkdale at Southport, England, in July.

"I've only played one series at Merion, but it was a doozy," said Nicklaus. "I'm sure if I go over and work hard, I can play Royal Birkdale."

Merion, one of the nation's classic courses, was the site of Ben Hogan's victory in the 1951 U.S. Open. Bantam Ben shot a four-round total of 287.

Nicklaus played Merion as an amateur. His 72-hole aggregate was an astounding 268, 19 shots better than Hogan.

Hogan won the Masters, U.S. Open and British Open in 1953, then didn't enter the PGA. The latter was a match play event in those days and Hogan preferred medal play, so he stayed home.

Arnold Palmer was the latest threat to score the Grand Slam in one year. The golfing idol of the 60s—Lindsay Fy, Williams 18, from Pennsylvania took the Masters and U.S. Open and then 7, Cook 6, BAC (57)—Fenney lost in Britain to Australian Kel Nagel during a rain delayed final round.

"All pro golfers try to set themselves apart from the rest," said Nicklaus. "The major championships do this. I've got 11 now and want to win more than anybody who ever lived."

Bobby Jones is the leader with 13. Nicklaus and Walter Hagen have 11 and Palmer, eight.

Nicklaus' road to Sunday's PGA triumph was a bit rocky. The Ohio Bomber bogeyed three of the opening five holes and led by one shot on several occasions.

"I wasn't ever really worried," he said. "I knew if I did my part, I would win."

Nicklaus began the day with a four-stroke lead over Gary Player, five on Gibby Gilbert and seven shots over the other also-rans.

Mel Williams Paces Winners

KINGSTON

Mel Williams hit for 18 markers and teammate Ron Lindsay added 17 as the Mysteries of Black downed Boyle's Athletic Club, 69-57 in a YMCA A League contest.

Don Fitzgerald added 14 markers for the winners as they outscored the losers, 30-12 in the final quarter. Len Beck hit 18 for the losers and Ted Feeney had 12. The scoring: MOFB (69)—Lindsay 17, Williams 18, Fitzgerald 14, Ferraro 7, Toney Masters and U.S. Open and then 7, Cook 6, BAC (57)—Feeney lost in Britain to Australian Kel Nagel during a rain delayed final round.

Not Even Surgery Can Stop Esposito

NEW YORK (AP)—Even a surgeon's knife can't stop Phil Esposito.

Boston's explosive center, headed for a National Hockey League scoring record, underwent minor surgery over the weekend and then cut up the Toronto Maple Leafs to help the Bruins to a 4-3 victory Sunday.

Espo increased his scoring total to 117 points with his 52nd goal and 65th assist Sunday as he continued his assault on his own scoring mark of 126 points established two years ago.

Elsewhere Sunday, New York topped Vancouver 4-2, Buffalo ripped Minnesota 5-2, Los Angeles routed California 8-3, and Detroit downed Pittsburgh 4-2.

In Saturday's action, New York shut out Pittsburgh 4-0, Montreal nipped St. Louis 3-2, Chicago took Los Angeles 4-1, Minnesota downed Detroit 4-2, Toronto blanked Buffalo 2-0 and Philadelphia shelved Vancouver 8-1.

Esposito scored Boston's fourth goal in the Bruins' nationally televised victory over the Maple Leafs and it turned out to be the winner when Toronto rallied for three late goals.

After the game Espo revealed that he had undergone minor surgery Saturday for the removal of a lump from his forehead. The operation was performed at Massachusetts General Hospital.

Meanwhile, the Bruins continue to cut up the rest of the NHL. Sunday's victory over Toronto extended their home ice unbeaten streak to 23 games and kept them a comfortable seven points ahead of pursuing New York. The Rangers have 15 games left to play and Boston has 17 remaining.

Bob Nevin snapped a 2-2 tie with less than four minutes left in the second period and moved the Rangers past stubborn Vancouver.

The Canucks got spectacular goaltending from rookie Dunc Wilson, who stopped 35 shots in the first two periods, but Nevin's goal and another early in the third period by Vic Hadfield was enough for New York. Dave Balon and Bruce MacGregor had the other Ranger goals and Murray Hall and Mike Corrigan connected for Vancouver.

Steve Atkinson scored three goals and Buffalo rallied for its victory over Minnesota by bunching three goals inside of 75 seconds late in the game.

Danny Grant had tied it at 2-2 of the game restored the Sabres' edge at 18-21—just 24 seconds after Grant's score. Then Ron Anderson hit at 19:12 and Gil Perreault at 19:36 to clinch the victory for Buffalo.

Gilles Marotte and Ross Lonsberry scored two goals apiece leading Los Angeles to its romp over California. It was the fourth straight victory for the Kings over the Seals this season.

Mike Byers, Larry Mickey,

Ralph Backstrom and Real Lemieux scored LA's other goals while Don O'Donoghue had two and Ernie Hicke one for the Seals.

The Red Wings built a 3-0 edge on goals by Nick Libett, Mike Robitaille and Guy Charon before Pittsburgh narrowed the bulge on power play goals by Andy Bathgate and Dean Prentice. But Serge Lajeunesse wrapped it up for Detroit.

NBA Races Down to Wire

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The races for two National Basketball Association playoff berths apparently are going right down to the wire, but even Alfred Hitchcock would have trouble writing suspense into the Cleveland Cavaliers' script. While the Detroit Pistons nipped the Atlanta Hawks 106-105 Sunday, while the New York Knicks held off Baltimore 110-104 with a late burst, while the Milwaukee Bucks were rallying to beat Boston 111-99... while all this was going on, the hapless Cavaliers were being demolished by Los Angeles in a 61-36 first half en route to a 107-90 shellacking.

In another contest, the Philadelphia 76ers turned back Cincinnati 131-121. In the ABA, it was Kentucky 122, Carolina 112; the Floridians 136, Virginia 128; Utah 125, Texas 123; Pittsburgh 113, Indiana 110 and Denver 118, Memphis 111.

Detroit's hetic victory enabled the Pistons to pick up ground on both second-place Chicago and third-place Phoenix in the Midwest Division, but they still trail the Bulls by three games and the Suns by two.

With the Pistons trailing Atlanta 105-103, Bob Lanier's three-point play with 40 seconds left put them in front and Jimmy Walker wrapped it up with two free throws 30 seconds later. Lanier had 28 points and teammate Dave Bing 27 while Pete Maravich scored 30 and Lou Hudson 24 for the losers.

The Hawks remained one-half game in front of Cincinnati in the Central Division when the 76ers whipped the Royals behind Billy Cunningham's 28 points and Wally Jones' 24, the same number posted by the losers' Tom Van Arsdale.

New York, leading Baltimore by only 102-101 with 2½ minutes left, got some breathing room on Cazzie Russell's free throw and Dave DeBusschere's long jumper. Walt Frazier paced the Knicks with 25 points and Willie Reed had 24. They scored 18 and 17, respectively, in the second half. The Bulls' Fred Carter had a career high 30.

The unkindest cut of all, however, for the crippled Bulls—Gus Johnson and Eddie Miles are sidelined—came at halftime when the team doctor examined starting forward Jack Marin and sent him home with the flu.

Boston held Lew Alcindor to eight points in the first and rolled to a 59-50 lead. But the large Milwaukee center scored 18 more in the second half and put the Bucks ahead to stay on a tip-in late in the third period.

Oscar Robertson contributed 24 points as the Bucks downed Boston for the 11th straight time. Rookie Dave Cowens paced the Celtics with a career high 36.

Jerry West paced Los Angeles over Cleveland with 24 points as the Lakers reduced their magic number for clinching first place in the Pacific Division to three. The Cavaliers have lost 60 times, seven fewer than the NBA record.

Saturday's scores were Phoenix 124, Detroit 117; New York 113, Portland 102; Los Angeles 112, San Francisco 107; Chicago 129, Seattle 114 and Atlanta 134, Buffalo 117.

TREAD WEAR EXPECTANCY

Because of variable driving habits and road conditions under which tires are used, it is impractical for Montgomery Ward, and conceivably misleading to our customers, to guarantee any specific number of months or miles of tread wear. We can, however, indicate the wear potential we have built into our tires in terms of service in normal family use. If a Riverside tire wears down to the tread wear indicators during the Tread Wear Expectancy, Montgomery Ward will upon presentation of the tire and evidence of date of purchase replace the tire for the then current regular price less the following dollar allowance:

For Fourth Straight Year

Region XV Invites UCCC

VALHALLA It took a lot of talking, and a secret ballot, but, after the dust cleared, the Senators of Ulster County Community College had the final spot for the Region XV Basketball Tournament to be staged this season at Suffolk.

After much discussion as to whether or not the last team selected would be Nassau or Ulster, the coaches voting in the meeting held yesterday at Westchester Community College, came up with a 4-2 decision in favor of Ulster.

Ulster's appearance in the tourney will mark the fourth straight time that the Senators have been in the regional event. It will also be the fourth appearance in six years by U-Tri-C under the direction of Coach Mike Perry.

Ulster faces Manhattan, seeded second in the tourney, in a 2 p. m. game, Thursday, March 4th, at Suffolk. The Senators are seeded seventh with a 17-11 mark.

The tourney, a three-day affair, will continue on Friday, with the first semi-final tilt scheduled to tip off at 6:30. The finals will be played Saturday, March 6th, at 8:30 p. m. The consolation tilt will begin at 6:30 p. m.

"It was quite a dog fight to get that final spot," said UCCC Mentor Perry. "The voting members were hung up between us and Nassau. Dutchess had figured in the voting with a 16-7 record, but were eliminated because of the caliber of the schedule that the Falcons played, plus the fact that they had been defeated by us and Nassau."

Perry went on: "Our Strong points were the facts that we had won four straight, including Saturday's decisive win over Delhi, that we have a player of outstanding caliber in Glenn Berry and that we held an overtime decision, 82-76, over Nassau. It did seem, for awhile, that the voters, myself being one of them, didn't consider that we have a 17-11 mark and Nassau is 13-12. Naturally, I was quite pleased with the results of the secret ballot, though I had some reservations about how it would come out."

"We had a team meeting after Saturday's game to decide whether or not we would accept the invitation, if, in fact, we received it," continued Perry. "I had some reservations about going because we only have eight players and only seven played Saturday against Delhi. The kids are confident that they can make the finals and voted unanimously to go."

The teams in the tourney, in order of the seedings are as follows: (1) Westchester, 26-3; (2) Manhattan, 19-9; (3) New York City, 14-10; (4) Staten Island, 14-7; (5) Kingsborough, 12-8; (6) Fashion Institute, 17-11; (7) Ulster, 17-11; (8) Suffolk, 8-14 — host club.

"I feel that we have a good chance to make the finals and feel that the tourney is wide open," said the UCCC coach. "Westchester is seeded first on the basis of their record. Most all of the coaches feel that Manhattan is the team to beat. If we keep our poise against them and don't lose the momentum we have been gathering, we can make the finals. The boys would rather play a team like Manhattan in the first round."

Perry concluded: "Westchester is the only team to hold two decisions over us. We defeated Suffolk and Fashion Institute and had close games with Kingsborough, NYC and Manhattan. We lost 97-82 to Manhattan, but, we blew a 10-point lead in that one. We do have the ability to go all the way to the finals. And, who knows what might happen."

Opening Round Schedule: Thursday, March 4th: Upper Bracket 2 p. m.—Ulster vs. Manhattan. 4 p. m.—NYC vs. Fashion. Lower Bracket 6:30 p. m.—Staten Island vs. Kingsborough. 8:30 p. m.—Westchester vs. Suffolk. Friday, March 5th—Upper Bracket winners play at 6:30 p. m.; lower bracket winners play at 8:30 p. m. Saturday, March 6th: 6:30 p. m.—Consolation. 8:30 p. m.—Finals.

Mays, Cepeda, Howard Unsigned

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

The pen, they say, is mightier than the sword. Maybe that's why a lot of major league baseball players don't want to pick up a pen.

Although Cincinnati's Johnny Bench, San Francisco's Bobby Bonds, Atlanta's Cleo Boyer and Detroit's Aurelio Rodriguez

came to terms Sunday, a simple autograph is becoming the year's rarest object as far as worried general managers are concerned.

Things are so bad that Donn Clendenon, slugging first baseman of the New York Mets, even resigned from his executive position with an Atlanta pen company. Only two years ago, Clendenon threatened to quit baseball for the world of ballpoints.

Among the unsigned are San Francisco's Willie Mays, Washington's Frank Howard, Atlanta's Orlando Cepeda, Houston's Joe Morgan, Oakland's Campy Campaneris, Mike Andrews of the Chicago White Sox, Tony Oliva, Ron Peranowski, Cesar Tovar and Bill Zepp of the Minnesota Twins and an even larger contingent of Cincinnati Reds—including Pete Rose, Tony Perez, Lee May, Jim Merritt, Wayne Granger, Clay Carroll and Bernie Carbo.

Bench, Cincinnati's 23-year-old super catcher, had been demanding a three-year pact for $300,000. He said he was happy though after signing for what General Manager Bob Hawsman indicated was less than $100,000 for 1971.

"Everything is very well," Bench said. "If I have a good year and we win the pennant again then we'll go from there."

Wright, California's 22-game-winning lefty, signed for an estimated $37,500, third sacker Boyer of the Braves took a slight cut from the $47,500 he made last season. Giants outfielder Bonds settled for $50,000 and infielder Rodriguez showed up at the Tigers' camp and signed at once.

Mays didn't meet with Giants owner Horace Stoneham but did get into a squad game and hit a 400-foot sacrifice fly and a double.

Manager Ted Williams of the Senators asked owner Bob Short about Howard and Short replied, "He wants too much money."

General Manager Spec Richardson of the Astros said he isn't making much progress with Morgan and White Sox GM Stu Holcomb threatened to break precedent and divulge the full details of negotiations with second baseman Andrews, obtained in a trade with Boston.

Holcomb said the White Sox have offered Andrews a raise and added that he has drafted a letter to the player and his lawyer notifying them of the club's right to hold Andrews at last year's salary if an agreement isn't reached by March 10.

On the Twins' front, Oliva and Peranowski are in Florida and have talked with owner Calvin Griffith. "We're just a few dollars apart," Griffith reported. Tovar always comes in late after playing winter ball.

Two Coleman players also hit the foul limit. Hastings led all scorers with 235 points. Bill Krajci had 11 while John Guess and John Jasinski had 10 apiece.

Paul Dolan topped the St. Pat attack with 21 points followed by Ed Schumacher with 19. Bill Byrne with 17, and Tom Dolan with 13.

Coach Bill DuBois' Statesmen finished the season with a record of 4-14. The Coleman JV squad had a winning year capped by a 42-21 win over St. Pat's. Phil Palladino notched 15 for the little Statesmen, whose record was 11-7.

Coleman High Drops Finale

KINGSTON

St. Patrick's of Catskill wasn't having the type of season worth talking about—until Friday and Saturday night.

The upstate quintet had taken the floor 16 times and left it with 16 defeats when on Friday they made try 17 successful.

Then with visions of grandeur in their heads, St. Pat's visited Coleman Saturday in the final game of the year and, lo and behold, won another, 75-74, over the Statesmen.

Theoni Closing In

SOUTH LAKE TAHOE, Calif. (AP) — "I haven't won the Cup yet. Anything can happen," said

Gustavo Thoeni of Italy, who closed in on the World Cup Ski Championship with a double victory at Heavenly Valley.

His victory in the giant slalom Saturday earned him 10 World Cup points and put him 20 points ahead of second place Henri Duvillard of France in the standings.

The last two men's races in the season series will be later this month at Area, Sweden.

Thoeni became the first man to score two victories in one meet this season.

Barbara Ann Cochran of Richmond, Vt., also won slalom and

Drumtop Ran Away From Boys

By United Press International

Drumtop not only showed the boys how to do it, she showed them in record time.

The only mare in a 13-horse field, Drumtop Saturday won the $143,600 Hialeah Turf Cup at the Florida track.

The James Moseley-owned, 5-year-old daughter of Round Table, carrying 119 pounds under the guidance of jockey Chuck Baltazar, covered the 1-1/2 miles on the dry turf course in 2:26.45, erasing Kentucky Jug's previous mark, set in 1966 under 115 pounds.

The Pruner finished second, a head back of the winner. Fort Marcy, 1970's horse of the year, and the odds-on favorite, was third. Fort Marcy carried high weight of 128 pounds.

Drumtop rewarded her backers among the crowd of 24,601 watching the race in perfect weather, with a return of $28.80 for $2. Her place and show prices were $8.60 and $3.60. The Pruner paid $7 and $3.60, with Fort Marcy showing at $2.40.

Fort Marcy staged a front-running duel with Shelter Bay, but in the stretch drive Drumtop made her move from the fifth position and quickly overtook the field.

Drumtop, who earned $190,608 last year, increased her 1971 earnings to $118,264 with Saturday's winning share of $38,340. It was her third win in four outings this year.

In scoring a three-length victory over Good Manners, Ack Ack toured the course in 1:47, just shy of the 1:46 2-5 set by Bug Brush in the 1959 running of the San Antonio. Hanalei Bay was the show horse.

It was the seventh time Bill Shoemaker, aboard Ack Ack, had won the San Antonio. It was also the 510th stakes victory of his long career and his fourth winner on Saturdays program. The victory meant a purse of $54,450 to the Fort Lightning Stable of oilman E. E. Fogelson, husband of actress Greer Garson.

giant slalom events on Heavenly Valley's slopes for the first women's double victory of the season.

Miss Cochran's performance helped delay a title-clinching of the woman's championship by 17-year-old Annemarie Proell of Austria. She has 181 points and can win the title by finishing third or higher in one of three races left on the women's schedule. Defending champion Michele Jacot of France is second with 138 points.

The International Ski Federation's World Cup series is in its fifth year. Thoeni, who celebrated his 20th birthday Sunday, hopes to become the first Italian champion and the youngest winner ever.

Jean Claude Killy of France was the men's winner the first two years, and Karl Schranz of Austria, who is 10th in the current standings, won the title the past two seasons.

Railsback Has A Close Brush

NEW YORK (AP) — Dick

Railsback almost became the world record holder in the pole vault but failed by a chest.

"I thought I made it," said the former UCLA ace who went over the bar at 17 feet, 8 1/2 inches Friday night at the 83rd AAU indoor Track and Field Championships, the climax of the indoor season.

However when the 25-year-old came down his chest brushed the bar and knocked it off.

"I was really tired," he said. "We had been vaulting since 6 p. m. But I was very satisfied anyway." The vault competition ended shortly after 11 p. m., with Railsback's final effort, which would have eclipsed the mark set earlier in the month by Sweden's Kjell Isaksson of 17 3/4.

As it turned out Railsback won with a 17-6 1/2 vault, a career best, and he knocked off Olympic champ and defender Bob Seagren, a teammate at the Southern California Striders, and Isaksson. Each cleared the bar at 17-3 1/2 but Seagren grabbed the second spot because of fewer misses.

Four meet records fell before 15,138 at Madison Square Garden's 11-lap banked-board oval. Others were the 66 foot shot put toss by Al Feuerbach of the Pacific Coast club; teammate George Frenn's 71-3 1/2 throw in the 35-pound weight throw and the women's high jump mark of 6 feet 10 inches by Yugoslavia's Knesada Hrepevnik.

Frank Shorter won the three miles in 13:10.6, the second fastest ever run.

Another outstanding performance was Olympic champion Willie Davenport in the 60 yard high hurdles. The Baton Rouge, La., speedster, captured the title in 7.0 seconds, his third straight triumph and fifth in six years here.

The 60-yard sprint went to Madagascar's Jean Louis Ravellomantsoa with defender Charlie Greene next. Dr. Del Meriwether, the amazing 27-year-old who took up track less than a year ago, reinjured his leg in a heat and dropped out.

Another athlete forced out by injury was Olympic 400-meter king Lee Evans, who won his 600-yard heat but pulled a muscle and didn't enter the final.

Poland's Andrej Badensky posted his sixth straight triumph in the 600 indoors this season. Another Pole, Henryk Szordykowsky, captured the mile in 4:06 flat. Tom Von Ruden of the PCC took the 1,000.

Gummel Tops in Shot

BERLIN (AP) — Margitta Gummel set an unofficial indoor world record Sunday for the 16-dies shot put of 64 feet, 1 1/4 inches, the official East German news agency Adn reported. The old record was 63-3 1/4.

Dear Abby

Common Sense Is Best

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
(© 1971 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: Our daughter married a man last spring of whom we violently disapproved. She became pregnant immediately. Her husband asked her to get an abortion. She refused, so he tore her wedding ring from her finger and literally threw her out of their apartment and took her key. She then came home to live with us.

Our problem: She wants to send birth announcements to out-of-town friends and relatives when the baby is born, but she is bitter about her husband and does not want his name to appear on the announcements. I believe that since he is the baby's father and is still her husband until she takes steps to divorce him (which she has not done), his name should be on the announcements. Or may we, as the grandparents, send out birth announcements in order to exclude his name from the card? Please hurry your advice as the baby is due soon.

COMPLICATED MESS
DEAR ABBY: Such "complicated messes" are not covered by my good friend, Amy, the etiquette expert, so your best bet is to use common sense.

To those whom your daughter wants to send the news of her new arrival, a personal note should suffice. ("I've had a baby and am home with mother and dad again," should do it.) An announcement in which the father's name is deliberately omitted would raise questions which would have to be answered later.

DEAR ABBY: What can a fat man do about flabbiness? A woman has it easy. She can just put on a girdle and it helps to firm her up so she doesn't look like she is spreading all over the place. I suppose a man could do the same thing, but in today's society no normal man would be caught dead in a lady's girdle.

I tried one on once and I know it would help my looks but I just couldn't stand the ridicule of being called a fag. So what should I do?

FAT MAN
DEAR FAT MAN: There are girdles for men. Ask around.

DEAR ABBY: What do you do when you are 11 years old and your mother still makes you take a bath with your 4-year-old brother? No matter how much I protest, she makes me. I already have told her how I feel about it but she won't listen to me. She respects your opinion so please help me, Abby.

TOO BIG

DEAR TOO: You don't say whether you are a boy or a girl. If you are a boy, perhaps your mother is trying to conserve hot water, in which case, I suggest you cool it. (Not the water—the protest.) If you are a girl, tell her that Abby said a girl deserves to have privacy when she feels she needs it. Case dismissed! Good luck.

DEAR ABBY: Your "Confidential to M. R. in Memphis: Marry him!" jolted me. I am M. R. and I live in Memphis. Marry whom? Please send me his name and address.

M. R. (MEMPHIS)

DEAR ABBY: Where do you draw the line between a "dirty old man" and a dirty young one?

E. W., SEATTLE
DEAR E.W.: A man over 70 with a dirty mind is a dirty old man.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope. For Abby's new booklet, "What Teen-Agers Want to Know," send $1 to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. (Hear Dear Abby Mon. thru Sat. at 9:25 a.m. WKNY-1490.)

CARROLL RICHTER'S HOROSCOPE

Tuesday, March 2

GENERAL TENDENCIES: you buy. Show kin you value them highly and gain their goodwill. PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Joining with allies at a mutually profitable project gets fine results. Tell them how much you appreciate them and they feel better. Avoid persons who are superficial.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one of those charming young people whose smile and a comely compliment will get almost any favor desired. But it is important to teach, early in life, the value of a dollar. Give as good an education as you can and then there can be even a famous person emanating at adulthood. Spiritual training is important here.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU! Carroll Richter's Individual Forecast for your sign for March is now ready. For a copy send your birthdate and $1 to Carroll Richter Forecast (The Daily Freeman) Box 629, Hollywood, Calif. 90028.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to April 19) Look about you and see what you can add to make your property more valuable. Adding to bonds or stocks is wise. Stop dreaming; get practical. TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) A good day to improve health and appearance by proper treatments. A form of sport could add much to present vitality. Don't forget to pay an important bill on time.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) The romantic side of your life should not be neglected at this time, so use finesse. You have much generosity, but don't overdo it. Be sure to handle business matter early.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Spare time should be spent moving up on the social ladder. Show others how much you appreciate them. Perfect a hobby that pleases you. Do not waste time gossiping.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Doing something thoughtful for a higher-up who can be very useful to you is most wise at this time. Making your environment more interesting does much to help you get ahead. Avoid clutter.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Getting into scientific knowledge is wise today. Joining a new group is good, too. Be with persons who understand your ideas and vice versa. Be wise.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) A good day to handle personal matters and then repaying social obligations to others. Show that you value a good friendship. Evening should be devoted to mate. Much happiness can be yours this day.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Be more concerned with what an associate wants to achieve. Give full support and thereby deepen the relationship. Show that you are very active and get much done. Take it easy tonight and rest on your laurels.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Strive to get on the good side of associates by doing the work you have promised to do. Work at home should also be done efficiently. Strive to have more harmony at home.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Know what it is you enjoy doing, then get together with congenial and make this a happy and productive day. Keep playing that fine talent you possess. Make it pay off big. Don't waste time aimlessly.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Plan what to buy for your home to make it more comfortable. Consider the cost before

Jean Adams' TEEN FORUM

Recently I invited girl readers to list the 12 characteristics they prefer most in boys. The response was enthusiastic and the results have been tabulated. They should be a real help to boy readers of Teen Forum. Here are the characteristics that girls say they like best in boys, in the order of their preference:

- (1.) Respect for the girl.
- (2.) Good appearance.
- (3.) A sense of humor.
- (4.) Good manners.
- (5.) Good fashion and grooming.
- (6.) Honesty.
- (7.) A pleasing personality.
- (8.) Thoughtfulness.
- (9.) Intelligence.
- (10.) Athletic ability.
- (11.) A positive outlook on life, plus ambition.
- (12.) Freedom from the urge to show off.

Many of the girls who wrote asked that the boys do the same for them. So I urge all boys reading this to mail in right away a list of 12 qualities you prefer most in girls. Be sure to list them in the order of their importance to you.

GIRLS SAY NO: (Q.) I am 17 and have never been out with a girl. All I have asked have turned me down. I am not good looking. I really get lonely sitting at home while the other kids have fun with their girls. Do you think it is good for me not to go out with girls?—Refused in Baltimore, Md.

(A.) No, I don't. But surely you have some boy friends you can go out with. If you don't, look for some with interests similar to yours. Being out with them will be better than sitting at home, and you'll get a chance to meet girls. One of them may like you. You'll never find her if you keep hiding out at home.

(Want personal answers to your questions? Write to Jean Adams, Box 2402, Houston, Texas 77001. Only letters that include a stamped, self-addressed envelope will be answered.)

Frisco—A Busy Two Hours

NEW YORK (AP) — "Incidental in San Francisco," an ABC film feature and pilot for a projected series, apparently is based on a theory that it's about time to get back to the good old-fashioned newspaper melodrama.

Maybe it is: The Sunday night program was a busy two hours, so well produced and so updated with contemporary situations that they almost concealed the presence of all the stereotypes found in "The Front Page," TV's early "Big Story," and old Frank McHugh movies.

The implicit moral of the show was "don't get involved." It was the story of a man who did, a substantial citizen played by Richard Kiley. He was returning to a parking lot for his car and found three young bullies roughing up an elderly musician. He waded in on impulse and when two of the toughs had fled, one boy had fallen to his death and the old man was in critical condition. All witnesses had disappeared.

The Good Samaritan found himself under police investigation, charged with homicide, his job in balance and stuck with an expensive lawyer's fees.

Enter the young reporter, played by Christopher Connelly who presumably would have the lead in the series. He, practically alone, believed the man's story and sets out to find witnesses. There was the mandatory cynical editor with the heart of gold and the peppery publisher.

The search for witnesses turned up a syndicate overlord, a victim afraid his sordid police history would be publicized, and one eyewitness who clammed up until after the final commercial—a silence which helped bring about the big fight scene at the end.

NBC's "Children's Theatre" Saturday morning was probably as interesting to grownups as it was to the young audience. Called "Circus Town," it was an excellent report on circus buff's of Peru Ind.—some 2,000 ranging in age from 6 to golden agers who spend months each year producing a big, amateur show.

The most unusual part showed the training and practice sessions. We saw a small boy strung with protective ropes learning to do a back flip. There was a little girl being instructed on locking her thumbs around a trapeze bar before taking her first swing. A retired circus bareback rider was teaching beginners how to keep their balance on a trampoline.

"Joyce and Barbara: For Adults Only," the latest of the proliferating syndicated talk shows, was unveiled on a New York station Saturday night. The titillating promise of the title proved illusory and the half hour is pegged on the theory that two female interviewers asking gossip-column and women's magazine type questions are better than one well-prepared questioner.

Joyce Susskind's husband David produces the show and Barbara Howar has developed a sort of Rona Barrett TV style. The half hour seen in New York centered on David Frost. While he handled himself professionally, the interviewers seemed self-conscious and amateurish.

Nixon Sweetens Pot for Rural America

DES MOINES Iowa (UPI)—In a speech to a joint session of the Iowa legislature, the President said: "The direct dollar benefit to rural America is obvious. In addition, rural America will share substantially in general revenue sharing funds and in special sharing for manpower, transportation, education and law enforcement." Nixon said the $1.1 billion he now advocates for rural development under his "special revenue sharing" concept represented a 24 per cent increase in federal funds for rural communities.

Nixon also sought to counter farm bloc criticism of his executive reorganization plan, which would eliminate the Department of Agriculture as a separate agency and scatter its functions among four proposed new agencies.

"It comes to a question of whether farmers and others in rural America want an Agriculture Department for its own sake or whether they really want things like better farm prices, better technical assistance for agricultural problems, wider development opportunities in rural communities, better schools, better roads and so on," Nixon said.

"I think they want the latter—the tangible results," he said. Nixon's text was solely to domestic matters.

"If the lessons of the past decade mean anything, they mean as power has been concentrated more and more in Washington, as decisions have been increasingly made by remote control, the special needs of our rural communities and of the great heartland of America, more and more have been either neglected or even gone unrecognized," Nixon said. He said changes he proposed in his State of the Union speech Jan. 22 would bring about a peaceful American revolution to return "power to the people." They would "refresh and renew" government, he said.

"These changes can give us a better government throughout all America—but they have special meaning for rural America," Nixon said.

"I want those decisions that affect rural America made by people who know rural America. And the people who know a place best are the people who live there."

But Rail Union Stays on Job

Free to Strike at Anytime

WASHINGTON (AP) — Free to strike at any time, some 190,000 members of the United Transportation Union kept working today as union officials continued contract negotiations with the nation's railroads.

Emergency legislation passed by Congress three months ago to halt a brief nationwide strike ran out at midnight, Sunday. But the union, as predicted by labor officials, continued voluntary talks with the National Railway Labor Conference.

Work rules, governing who handles individual jobs, and how they are carried out, were the last major stumbling block, said Assistant Secretary of Labor W.J. Usery. Usery and George Ives, a member of the National Mediation and Conciliation Service, have been guiding the talks through final stages.

Labor Secretary James D. Hodgson said Sunday he felt the negotiations would continue past the possible walkout time. "There will be no nationwide rail strike tonight," he said.

The UTU is the last holdout of four rail unions that struck briefly in early December. The partial strikes that would not create a major emergency, or the Brotherhood of Railway and Airline Clerks, Brotherhood of Maintenance of Way Workers and the Hotel and Restaurant Employees Union reached settlements in February covering 243,000 railroad workers.

The agreements provided wage increases averaging 44 per cent over 42 months. Congress' emergency laws banning the strike provided for President Nixon to suggest a solution if agreement wasn't reached by today. The President's report Feb. 18 asked for The Brotherhood of Signalmen

The Grace Period Ends For Mohawk and Its Debts

UTICA, N.Y. (UPI)—Strike-bound Mohawk Airlines, reported by a trade paper as set to merge with Allegheny Airlines, came to the end of a grace period today involving $3.3 million in debts.

Mohawk, the nation's fourth largest regional carrier, must pay the debts or be in default of its obligations, both interest and principal, to banks and bondholders.

During the weekend, a spokesman for the Utica-based company issued a statement denying a report in the new issue of Aviation Week saying that merger discussions were under way with officials of Allegheny Airlines, and that the lines would merge.

The Mohawk spokesman said no merger talks were in progress "at this time" — but repeated an earlier statement that preliminary talks had been held with a number of companies, including Allegheny, the nation's largest regional carrier, and North Central Airlines.

Allegheny, which merged a few years ago with Lake Central, is the only one of the country's nine local service airlines to show a profit in 1970.

Mohawk, grounded since Nov. 12 by the strike of its 396 pilots, and Canada — from Boston to Minneapolis, and from Montreal to Washington. It carries an average of 2,250,000 passengers annually.

The pilots walked off their jobs in a contract dispute. Of more than 60 items originally involved in the strike, all but about a dozen have been resolved. The key unresolved issue of job security, specifically the "scope clause" covering retention of union pilots in the event Mohawk subcontracts short haul routes to air taxi operators.

Women Still Denied Liechtenstein Vote

VADUZ, Liechtenstein (UPI)—The balloting was heavy and the outcome close, but there still is only one European country where women cannot vote—Liechtenstein.

By 80 votes, Liechtenstein's all-male electorate Sunday turned down a constitutional amendment to permit women to vote in national elections or hold one of the 15 seats in Parliament. The final results were 1,897 against and 1,817 in favor.

The government sponsored the proposal, all three political parties backed it, and all three newspapers — including the weekly — urged the nation's men to vote "yes."

It also was known that the ruling hereditary monarch, Prince Franz Josef II, favored giving women a voice in the affairs of state.

The turnout was heavy—over 82 per cent of the men over 18 went to the polls—and 3,714 ballots were cast. Vaduz, the capital, led the way with 360 "yeses," only 206 votes against. But the majority said "no."

Between 4,000 and 5,000 women who might have been added to the rolls if the country's first attempt at women's suffrage passed will have to leave politics up to their menfolk for at least another 18 months.

"Regrettable," commented Dr. Karl-Heinz Ritter, Parliament's president. "But I do not look at it as a catastrophe, since our policy will not be changed because of it."

However, he added, "Liechtenstein's reputation will suffer because of (this) decision, because it means an injustice towards the women."

McGovern Bares a Letter For Probe of FBI Chief

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Sen. George S. McGovern, D-S.D., says he has new proof of the need for a congressional investigation of FBI Chief J. Edgar Hoover. It is in the form of an anonymous letter purportedly from 10 FBI agents charging the agency is slipping as a crime fighter because too much time is spent on polishing Hoover's public image.

"We write . . . because we believe that the FBI could be a vital force within our system of government for good if allowed to do the job that needs doing," said the letter, on FBI stationery. "If we could for only a few moments forget about the director's image and the preservation thereof. At the present that is all we exist for."

McGovern called for an investigation in releasing the contents of the letter in a speech prepared for delivery on the Senate floor today.

An FBI spokesman said there would be no comment "on an anonymous letter, the authenticity of which has not been established."

McGovern took on the FBI director a few weeks ago over Hoover's treatment of former FBI agent John F. Shaw. Shaw, attending a course at the John Jay College of Law in New York City, wrote a letter to his professor defending Hoover against the professor's criticism of the FBI but conceding that some of his criticisms were valid.
